High fuel rates, rain make veggie prices go north

Damage to summer crops adds to problem

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE

AS if the sky-rocketing fuel prices were not enough to break the back of the common man, the food platter is also getting costlier, with vegetables, including staples like potato and onion, burning a hole in people's pockets.

The soaring prices of petrol and diesel and damage to summer crops due to unseasonal and erratic rains in several states are driving up the prices, according to traders. While the prices of onion, tomato and green vegetables have seen a massive increase in most states over the past two weeks, potato has largely been stable except in a few states.

In Uttar Pradesh, the kitchen staple has not seen any rise in prices as the state saw a bumper crop this year. But tomato, which was selling at ₹60 per kg a fortnight ago, has registered an increase of ₹10-15 per kg while another kitchen essential, onion, is now costlier by about ₹20. The prices of other vegetables such as lady finger (okra), brinjal, cauliflower and bottle gourd have been stable.

Vegetable traders expected the prices to escalate further. "Since the festive season is on and the fuel prices are touching record highs every day, the cost of transportation of vegetables has gone up. There is no hope of relief in the next few days. Demand is high and supply is less as onions and tomato are coming from outside the state," said Shahnwaz Huassain, president, fruit and vegetable sellers union in Lucknow.

In Jaipur, too, consumers are feeling the pinch as most vegetables in the retail markets have become costlier by 15-25%. Only potato price has remained static. Nisha, a homemaker, said prices shoot up in the festive season every year and with Diwali round the corner, they're going to increase further. "I buy in bulk. So, if I have to pay ₹1,000-1,200 instead of ₹600-800, it pinches." Sanjay, owner of a vegetable shop in Jaipur, said many green vegetables are costlier also because of untimely rains.

Worry over oil prices

Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman on Sunday shared her concern on the fuel price rise. "The way the fuel prices are leading to a big crest... I don't know how much will have to be diverted from other most important considerations, and that's the challenge I see," she told a few CEOs in New York

In Bengal, even potato has become costlier by ₹10 compared to a fortnight ago while people have to fork out ₹20 extra per kg for onions. Tomato has hit the roof and is selling at ₹90-93 a kilo in Kolkata while brinjal, which was selling at ₹60 two weeks back, has touched ₹100. Traders said prices tend to rise during September-October and stabilise only after winter crops arrive in the markets.

In Punjab and Haryana, supply shortage caused by heavy rains in the region and several other parts of the country is another factor behind rising prices. Onion is selling at ₹50 per kg, up from ₹35, while the price of tomato has doubled in a fortnight — from ₹40 to ₹80 per kg. Peas are selling at ₹120 per kg, up from ₹80, while cauliflower costs ₹100 per kg as against ₹60 per kg earlier.

Kerala on the edge as more rains forecast, Idukki dam to open gates

ENS @ T'Puram

AFTER a spate of deadly landslides and flash floods killed at least 25 people, Kerala is bracing for more rains in the coming days. The situation remains grim as water levels in dams in the densely populated state are rising fast. As many as 10 dams are in red alert zone. In a bid to avoid a re-run of the 2018 deluge, the state government has decided to release water from two largest reservoirs in the state, Idukki and Idamalayar, from 11 am on Tuesday.

While a high alert has been issued in the coastal districts, the downstream areas of Chalakudy and Pampa rivers are already flooded due to release of water from Sholayar and Kakki dams.

Water level in Idukki dam reached 2,397.52 feet (93.60% of its capacity) on Monday. CM Pinarayi Vijayan directed an expert committee to monitor water levels and make necessary preparations. Heavy rain has been forecast from Wednesday to Friday across the state. Yellow alert has been sounded in all districts except Alappuzha, Kannur and Kasaragod for Wednesday. P7

If BJP ignores farmers, it can't return to power: Malik

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Jaipur

MEGHALAYA Governor Satya Pal Malik has warned the BJP that it will not return to power unless the Centre listens to farmers protesting the new agricultural laws.

"There is only one thing which will solve the entire issue. If the government agrees to give legal guarantee to the minimum support price mechanism, I will mediate and convince the farmers," he told the media in Rajasthan's Jhunjhunu on Sunday.

"I am with the farmers. I have fought with PM and home minister for them. I have told everyone that what they are doing is wrong and they should not do it," he said.

Malik spoke on the Lakhimpur Kheri violence, when eight people were killed after being knocked down by a vehicle carrying BJP workers.

Effort to make IIT counselling perfect

SUMI SUKANYA DUTTA @ New Delhi

THE admission counselling for IITs and other centrally-run engineering institutes may get more student-friendly this year in order to help applicants avoid unintentional mistakes. Last year, 18-year-old Sidhanta Batra from Agra, who had secured an All India Rank of 270 in JEE Advanced, had lost a seat in IIT Bombay over a wrong click during online counselling.

The decision to make the process friendlier for students was made by the Joint Seat Allocation Authority, the panel responsible for admission counseling. "Everyone is new to online counselling," said an official, adding that online process began only from 2020, in view of Covid-19. Officials in the JoSAA said that two rounds of mock counseling are also being organised this year before the six rounds of actual counseling. And after every round, the students will have the option to seek clarifications from experts. The mock rounds will begin on Oct 21 and the admission process in these institutes is set to be completed by Nov 20.

CM directs officials to draw up drain masterplan

On tour of rain-battered city, Bommai notes lack of planning

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

CHIEF Minister Basavaraj Bommai decried the lack of planning, and coordination between government departments, while on his tour of rain-hit areas of Bengaluru. He visited parts of HSR Layout, Madiwala, Hosur Road, Silk Board Junction and Agram on Monday, to understand the problems faced by locals due to weeks of heavy downpour. He noted, "This is what happens when there is development without proper planning, and when there is no coordination between government departments."

At the inspection drive, he was approached with comments, suggestions, complaints and grievances from citizens. Speaking to the media after the drive, the CM said that directions have been issued to construct a parallel drain along the main drain, to address water flow. Directions have also been issued to increase the capacity of the main drain and water holding capacity of tanks in the region. He added that there are 15-20 tanks, but their connectivity and channels have been lost due to increased urbanisation and unplanned development. He confirmed that orders have been issued to create a masterplan of the drain network in the city and strengthen it.

BBMP workers clear a fallen tree in Ulsoor on Monday | EXPRESS

Bommai said that it was brought to his attention that the main drain is lower than the underground drainage lines, causing water to gush into homes. "This will be corrected. The inter-connection of drains will also be checked," he said, adding that construction work of the four MLD sewage treatment plants in Madiwala lake, which was halted, should be resumed immediately, and be completed by June.

He pointed out that treated water from STPs was being let into drains, which should not happen. Creation of a separate drainage network for HSR Layout should be completed in 4-5 months, Bommai ordered. He asserted that scientific planning is necessary, and works should be prioritised. All work should not be taken up in one go.

Citizens alerted the CM about Mantri builders allegedly dumping sand, debris and other material into the drain, which is causing flooding. The CM directed BBMP to follow Supreme Court orders.

300 buildings found vulnerable: Palike

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

BRUHAT Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike (BBMP) Chief Commissioner Gaurav Gupta, noted on Monday that, as per a recent survey report, around 300 newly constructed buildings have been found to be vulnerable, and notices have been issued to them.

Speaking to the media media, he said, "As per assessment and the report prepared by joint commissioners of all zones, the number has been ascertained. The list is being procured and compiled. In the orders, the property owner and contractors have been told to vacate the properties, repair the structures if it is possible to stabilise them, or else demolish the site. If it is not possible, the BBMP will work to demolish the sites."

Gupta added that, "Some properties are in very bad condition, and they comprise of government and private buildings. Directions have been issued to act immediately. As per BBMP Act and as per the disaster management act, action will be taken. High rise buildings will be dealt with separately." He pointed that there are many dilapidated buildings in Bengaluru, which are also being addressed to as per BBMP rules.

5,000 high rise structures in Bengaluru, except for 1,125 buildings, have been built without proper clearances and NOCs, for which Gupta said he will look into the matter.

FabIndia recalls Deepavali ad after backlash

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

WELL-known ethnic apparel brand FabIndia deleted its tweet announcing the festive collection 'Jashn-e-Riwaaz', after Bengaluru South MP and BJP Yuva Morcha President Tejasvi Surya slammed FabIndia by tweeting, "Deepavali is not Jashn-e-Riwaaz. This deliberate attempt of abrahamisation of Hindu festivals, depicting models without traditional Hindu attires, must be called out. And brands like @FabindiaNews must face economic costs for such deliberate misadventures."

On October 9, FabIndia had run its ad campaign for Diwali on Twitter, stating, "As we welcome the festival of love and light, 'Celebration-e-Riwaaz' by FabIndia is a collection that beautifully pays tribute to Indian culture."

Following Surya's tweet, Chairman of Manipal Global Education Mohandas Pai also tweeted, "@FabindiaNews is doing this deliberately and consumers must protest this misuse like they did for others".

Speaking to The New Indian Express, Pai said that FabIndia should "respect the religious festivals of every religion, and not use inappropriate terms to connect their product with such religious festivals". He added that all religious festivals are "emotional and deeply respected by members of their community. What they have done for Deepavali is condemnable. FabIndia can link their brand to any term they want to without linking it to any such festival. They have irreversibly damaged their brand".

TNIE tried to get in touch with Surya, but there was no response from him.

Traffic surge worries Rajajinagar residents

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

A sudden, sharp rise in traffic on Vatal Nagaraj Road in Rajajinagar has become a cause of concern for commuters of West Bengaluru. Not just the traffic police, even former Education Minister S Suresh Kumar was forced to stand on the congested stretch to manage traffic on Sunday and Monday.

Due to heavy rush at a recently opened mall, traffic snarls can be witnessed from the City Railway Station all the way up to Dr Rajkumar Road. Residents of Rajajinagar M Block are also worried as people park their vehicles at the rear of the mall, to avoid paying for parking. After receiving several complaints from locals, Kumar also took to social media to point out the traffic mess.

"Okalipuram and Vatal Nagaraj Road are prime locations for commuters and residents of West Bengaluru. The stretch is even more important because a portion of Race Road connecting Shivananda Circle is closed due to ongoing flyover works. Rain has only been making matters worse. The area is already a mess because of the snail-paced work at Okalipuram junction," said Deependra J, a commuter.

However, the mall management said that as it is still very new, more people are walking in. "The situation will normalise in a couple of weeks," they added.

Experts express doubt

An Urban Development Department official said, "The same issue happened with another mall in Malleswaram. There was no proper check on the carrying capacity of the location, the passenger car per unit (PCU) on the road and entry and exit points when the BBMP approved the building plans."

Deputy Commissioner of Police (Traffic-West) Kuldeep Kumar held a meeting with the mall management and other police officials on Monday and discussed a few small changes to ease the flow of traffic. He said, "We have suggested a change of the entry and exit points and putting up more boards and security guards on roads to ensure there is no roadside parking. We are also requesting the BBMP to complete the underpass work at the earliest so that traffic movement is easier and commuters coming from Majestic are not inconvenienced."

BBMP Chief Commissioner Gaurav Gupta said that the matter will be investigated and if there is something wrong, it will be corrected immediately.

The BBMP will also discuss the issue with the government to check if any more restrictions need to be issued. ENS

Detailed guidelines on reopening physical classes

HE said that detailed guidelines on reopening of physical classes will be issued by the department soon, and physical distancing norms will have to be followed strictly. Schools that do not have the required classroom infrastructure and cannot accommodate more children will have the option of continuing classes with 50 per cent attendance even after November 1. "This is to ensure that students are seated at least one metre apart," Nagesh said.

The government has made it mandatory for all teachers to be fully vaccinated, and teachers aged above 50 years will have to use a face shield in class.

However, online schooling will continue for students who do not want to attend physical classes. In Bengaluru, some schools have stopped online classes as more than 80 per cent of students are attending offline classes. Stressing that attendance is not mandatory, Nagesh explained that both online and offline options will be available.

Decision on LKG, UKG soon

The department has not yet decided on reopening physical classes for kindergarten children. Minister Nagesh said that Anganwadis across the state are open for children of that age, and depending on recommendations made by the TAC, the department will decide on reopening schools for LKG and UKG after a month.

BACK TO SCHOOL

1. A consent letter from parents mandatory
2. Only 50 per cent of children at schools that lack infrastructure
3. Two doses of vaccine mandatory for teachers and staff
4. Face masks mandatory
5. Hand sanitisers must be provided
6. Physical distancing of minimum one metre
7. No crowding, especially at entry and exit points
8. Classrooms and restrooms should be sanitised
9. Teachers who are over 50 years old must wear face shields

Daily Starscope

PETER VIDAL

19th October : An energetic Moon sets the scene for a lively day and we can all set our sights on distant objectives - in our own individual ways, of course. My feeling is that it's right and proper for every one of us to try and make the most of our lives, and I'll take almost any astrological alignment as an excuse!

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr. 20)
Without a shadow of a doubt, this is an ambitious time for Ariens. Yet no two of you share exactly the same goal. One thing is clear, though - that this week success will only follow if you put your own unique aspirations above duties or obligations to other people.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 - May 21)
Whatever challenges you face, whatever perils you meet, remember one thing. The planets are on your side now and over the rest of the month. Few people are as fortunate as you when it comes to long-term planetary prospects, all the more so if you're ready for a spot of revolution.

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21)
The way out of current financial complications is twofold. First, you can attempt to run your affairs in a traditional manner. Secondly, you may realise that your fortunes are linked to other people's and make teamwork your priority. You can even offer them a helping hand.

CANCER (June 22 - July 23)
Events are moving very fast, and will continue to do so for the next month. The problem is that a great deal that happens may seem to be outside your control. Yet if you are honest, you'll see that you laid the seeds of current crises - and triumphs - over the last twelve months.

LEO (July 24 - Aug. 23)
The crucial factor today is the planets' desire to stir up mysteries and confusion, a factor which leads you away from everything of worldly significance, towards solitude, charity, imagination and dreams. You may therefore feel a little out of touch with certain daily duties.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23)
You're not usually interested in small talk, yet I would advise you to do whatever is necessary to mix as widely as possible, no matter how unpromising social contacts seem. Eventually, something of value will emerge from a new relationship, if only you can wait!

LIBRA (Sept. 24 - Oct. 23)
Home entertaining and family engagements are favoured all week. Some may be pleasurable, some may be called to deal with knotty problems and awkward business. If it's agreement you're after, remember that where there's a will there's a way. In other words, it's all up to you!

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22)
Excellent, intuitive and commonsense lunar aspects should put you on the right track today. The beneficial impact will be felt primarily on your instincts, those mysterious Scorpionic feelings which are responsible for guiding you through life's many minor perils.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 22)
Money worries resurface today, but those of you who have already decided to do something positive about your situation will take a further step towards greater prosperity. The general drift of events this week is supportive, so don't falter now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)
The Moon takes up a powerful position, raising your confidence but also indicating that your intuitions are on top form. This has two consequences. On the one hand, you will be very sensitive to the fact that partners' interests must be respected. On the other, you will be challenged to broaden the scope of your own activities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19)
This is a lively day and everyone seems to want more than they can have. An unforeseen obstacle brings the greatest risk of a clash but, in some strange way, the consequence of any irrational disagreement could be a deeper insight into your real aims and options.

PISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar 20)
Social commitments are crystallised magnificently by the Moon's creative dimensions. If you seek out fresh group and community responsibilities, then you'll find your true role. You are the right person to show the rest of us the best way forward.

Covid norms eased further: Pools to open, minimal checks at airports

TAC reviewed fall in number of cases, TPR; 50% capacity allowed in swimming pools

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

WITH a consistent drop in the number of Covid-19 cases in the state, based on recommendations by the Technical Advisory Committee (TAC), the Bommai government on Monday announced further relaxations in Covid norms. Relaxations were announced for international arrivals at airports, besides opening of swimming pools, but with certain conditions.

According to the order issued, the current Covid-19 situation in Karnataka was on Sunday reviewed by the TAC, which after considering a consistent decline in the number of daily cases, test positivity rate, and overall decline in active cases, recommended opening up of more activities.

NIGHT CURFEW TO CONTINUE

TAC has recommended continuation of night curfew till the end of November. If there is night curfew, restaurants, pubs and bars will be vacated early, resulting in thin crowds in these places, is the TAC opinion. At present, night curfew is in operation from 11pm to 5am, till October 25.

Officials said that based on a request letter from the Chief Operating Officer, KIA, to the Principal Secretary, Department of Health and Family Welfare, regarding easing of operations at the airport for international arrivals, a detailed discussion was held at the TAC meeting. It was later decided to ease operations at airports in Karnataka for international arrivals.

The government has decided to discontinue SP02 routine check (except in cases of fever, cough, cold, difficulty in breathing, etc). Also, it has been decided to discontinue RT-PCR test report checking on arrival, except for those from select countries notified by the Centre, the order said. Instead, there would be mandatory uploading of RT-PCR report in the Air Suvidha portal by the passenger, and airlines will check this before boarding.

However, with respect to the protocol of quarantine for arrivals from the United Kingdom, it said the prevailing guidelines issued by the Union ministry would be followed. "Clarification regarding the same will be issued by the Department of Health and Family Welfare," it said.

Meanwhile, at swimming pools, 50 per cent capacity is allowed, with the number of people allowed displayed at the entrance. All those entering will be screened for fever and respiratory symptoms, and only the asymptomatic and those with two-dose vaccination certificates will be allowed, it said, adding that after every batch, the rest rooms, walkways and other common areas used by swimmers will be disinfected using 1 per cent sodium hypochlorite solution.

It's dengue season, beware of the mosquito

IFFATH FATHIMA @ Bengaluru

WITH incessant rain battering Karnataka for the past month, the number of dengue cases has jumped, although figures given by BBMP do not show an increase. However, hospitals are reporting a large influx of patients, and expect the number to increase by November.

Recent reports from Delhi state that the number of dengue cases has increased in the capital, and one death was also reported. Experts caution people to stay indoors, and suggest that civic bodies look for stagnant water pools and carry out mosquito fogging in all areas, especially vulnerable mosquito breeding spots. According to BBMP data, 2,525 dengue cases were reported from May 2021 to October 2021. In July, 351 cases were reported against 2,966 tested, while in August, the number shot up to 697 cases with 5,523 tests, and saw a further jump to 941 cases in September, against 6,837 tests.

However, until mid-October, 260 cases were reported against 1,832 cases. Health professionals state that cases are likely to jump in the beginning of November, once the rain stops and water stagnation leads to breeding of mosquitoes.

Meanwhile, according to Health and Family Welfare department data from January to October, 51,151 suspected dengue cases were reported, with 3,681 testing positive.

Dr Brunda MS, Consultant - Internal Medicine, Aster CMI Hospital, said, "The numbers have clearly increased, every day at least 5-6 patients are testing positive for dengue this month. This is mainly due to the monsoon. With water stagnation and movement of people outside, the numbers have increased. During the lockdown, the numbers were low, with people staying indoors. Even viral flu cases are high. We have even come across dengue patients with severe dengue shock syndrome admitted in the ICU."

Another private hospital doctor said that numbers are expected to surge in November.

Probe into laxity by Jan Aushadi Kendras

ENS @ Bengaluru

IN response to TNIE's report titled 'Jan Aushadi Kendras sell drugs without in-store pharmacist' in the edition dated October 18, State Drug Controller Bhagoji Khanapure ordered an inquiry into issues highlighted in the story. If irregularities are proved, action has to be taken as per law, and a report submitted to the higher authorities, read the circular dated October 18.

TNIE's report highlighted that the Karnataka State Registered Pharmacists' Organisation has alleged that government-run Jan Aushadi Kendras are selling drugs in the absence of registered pharmacists.

EXPRESS IMPACT

The organisation has sent documents highlighting various issues, suggestions and amendments to the Drugs and Cosmetics Act and Rules to Prime Minister Narendra Modi, Union Minister of Health and Family Welfare Mansukh Mandaviya and other Union ministers.

The story also reported another allegation, that Jan Aushadhi shops are allowed to substitute Schedule H drugs, whereas other medical shops are strictly banned from doing so. Schedule H drugs are those which can be purchased only with a prescription from a doctor. The story also reported complaints of tin sheds being given a licence to operate as medical shops, though drugs have to be maintained at certain temperatures.

CM announces industrial township in Chitradurga

Directs Deputy Commissioner to identify 1,000-2,000 acres for the project, says it will help in development of the region

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Chitradurga

CHIEF Minister Basavaraj Bommai on Monday announced the setting up of an industrial township in Chitradurga district after Murugha Mutt pontiff Dr Shivamurthy Murugha Sharanaru pointed out to the region's backwardness and lack of employment opportunities. The announcement came as a surprise and was received with huge applause.

The CM made the announcement at the 'Guruvandana' programme organised as part of the Sharana Samskruti Utsava to mark Dr Shivamurthy Sharanaru's completion of 30 years as the mutt pontiff on Monday.

Bommai said the Bengaluru-Mumbai industrial corridor, which passes through the district, will help in development of the region. "In order to aid Chitradurga's development, I'm announcing an industrial township in the district. It will come up on 1,000-2,000 acres," the CM said and instructed the district deputy commissioner to identify suitable land for the project.

Bommai pointed out that when B S Yediyurappa was Leader of the Opposition, he had taken up the cause of the people. "He had fought development projects of the state. When he became CM, he ensured that those projects were realised. The Upper Bhadra project was moving at the snail's pace. When he became CM, Yediyurappa made a resolve to complete the project. Despite several roadblocks, the project was launched and is now feeding water to the region. Yediyurappa also made recommendations to declare it as a national project," the CM said.

Earlier, Dr Shivamurthy Murugha Sharanaru regretted that though the BJP has five MLAs from the region, they are not making enough efforts to get development projects sanctioned for the district. "Chitradurga lacked development when compared to other districts and district figured less in budgets. The district needs industrial development. The city needs to be a smart city. I hope the CM will give priority for the development of the district, " the seer said.

Saints achieved lot in short lifespan: Seer

Murugha Mutt pontiff Dr Shivamurthy Murugha Sharanaru said that the lifespan of some saints were short, but they had made significant achievements and guided the society. Stating that Swami Vivekananda was one such example, he said, "The whole world admires Swami Vivekananda. The 12th century social reformer Basavanna penned Vacahanas to guide society and launched a movement to build an egalitarian society." The Murugha Mutt seer described Basavaraj Bommai as a lucky CM and B S Yediyurappa as an experienced CM. "Let's hope that Bommai's lucky charm and Yediyurappa's experience take Chitradurga district on the path of development," he said.

BSY: Mutt spreading Basava philosophy

"MURUGHA Sharanaru is doing what the 12th century social reformers had promoted. His efforts should yield fruit," the CM said.

Bommai said, "We say Basavanna (the 12th century social reformer) is still prevalent. At the same time, it is regrettable that social inequality which was prevailing in the 12th century still continues in the 21st century. Since the society Basavanna dreamt of has still not been built, Shivamurthy Murugha Sharanaru is striving hard to realise that dream. We all have to join hands with him."

Yediyurappa said the Anubhava Mantapa of 12th century was a model for democracy. "Murugha Mutt has been spreading the Basava philosophy everywhere, and Murugha Sharanaru is the guiding light for the oppressed. He has been conducting widow and inter-caste marriages, taking care of destitute children, serving free food and reforming society for the last 30 years. Sharana Samskruti Utsava has now become a people's festival," he said. Murugha Sharanaru said that though some saints lived for a short time, their achievements were significant. "What Swami Vivekananda did is history now." Stressing the need to develop Chitradurga district, he said, "It is still a backward area. MLAs from the district must get development projects sanctioned for the district."

Resident Editor of The New Indian Express Santwana Bhattacharya said, "Sharanaru's philosophy of life, his progressive thinking, his charitable works, the educational institutions he fostered and more have all made a mark in the last 30 years."

ALL EYES ON BSY AS HE HEADS OUT ON WEEK-LONG CAMPAIGN

BANSY KALAPPA
@ Bengaluru

THE Bharatiya Janata Party will have to come up with something spectacular for an assured win in Hanagal and Sindagi, where the ground report is none too encouraging. While as a rule, bypolls almost always favour the ruling party, this time there is an underlying discomfort within the party, which is working doubly hard to pull off a win.

Former chief minister B S Yediyurappa, the star campaigner for the BJP, left for Chitradurga on Monday afternoon, and will halt in Shivamogga for the night. He is on a week-long campaign tour of the two constituencies. While his itinerary is not too clear, local leaders will decide on his day-to-day tour. He is to halt in Bagalkot on Tuesday night.

Yediyurappa will start his campaign in Sindagi, and the BJP is concerned about how effectively the veteran could be used in this constituency. He will then head to Hanagal. Former deputy CM Laxman Savadi is in charge in Sindagi, while Agriculture Minister B C Patil is in charge of Hanagal.

Yediyurappa's campaign will comprise mostly road shows and meetings, where big crowds are expected. Though he is no longer the Chief Minister, the cadres at the ground level are still with him. Both the party leaders and rank and file will be watching him keenly, for any unspoken message he may attempt to send across. The tears that he shed when he celebrated two years in power are not likely to be forgotten anytime soon, say party insiders. It is also known that Yediyurappa is unhappy that the party has not accommodated son B Y Vijayendra in the ministry so far, but has not gone public about it.

"For over 40 years, Yediyurappa has been an 'independent thinking' politician, who has defied the party line and taken decisions independently, something Bommai is unable to do. Yediyurappa enjoyed a secular image, something not many other BJP politicians can boast of. He has a pro-farmer image, which is a plus," said political analyst BS Murthy. "Surprisingly, it is this independent thinking politician whose words and actions will matter more than all BJP politicians put together."

K'taka Congress tweet on PM sparks row

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

A tweet posted by the official handle of the state Congress unit calling Prime Minister Narendra Modi as 'angootha chhaap' triggered a strong response from the Bharatiya Janata Party, which termed it as crass and in poor taste.

However, defending the tweet, Congress spokesperson Lavanya Ballal said, "The BJP's tweets are so often crass and crude, can we talk about them?"

Former BJP former state media convener S Shantaram said, "If the social media team of any political party relies on inexperience, it translates into crass and impolite language. Such tweets and communication will have no effect on the people in the long run. The social media teams need to understand that politics is not about criticism merely for the sake of it."

Brand strategy specialist Harish Bijoor pointed out, "Rival parties go all out in shooting off their tweets! There is a 'fastest finger first' syndrome at play. In the bargain, language becomes crass and all civility is lost. When one looks at tweets of this kind, it makes you wonder whether this is social media or anti-social media."

Congress win in bypoll will be a warning to Modi, says Kharge

MAHESH M GOUDAR @ Vijayapura

CONGRESS leaders, including Opposition leader in the Rajya Sabha Mallikarjun Kharge and former chief minister Siddaramaiah, campaigned for party's Sindagi bypoll candidate Ashok Managuli at Moratagi in Vijayapura district on Monday. The bypolls to Sindagi and Hanagal will be held on October 30. Addressing a public gathering, Kharge said the victory of the Congress in the bypolls will send a message to the BJP and its leaders that people are unhappy with the administration. "By winning the bypolls, we ill not form the government. But the defeat of the BJP will be a clear message to PM Narendra Modi and his colleagues that people are intimidated with the regime," he said.

Accusing the BJP of coming to power in at least six states in the most undemocratic way, Kharge said, "The party uses illegal tactics such as luring elected MLAs and threatening them using agencies like the Income Tax Department to form its government."

Criticising the BJP for its 'divisive politics', Kharge said, "I challenge political parties, mainly the BJP, to seek votes on the basis of development instead of provoking people with religious sentiments. There are a few political parties that claim to be secular during polls. Once such party emerges victorious, then joins hands with communal parties like the BJP. So, people should be aware of such parties," Kharge remarked, without naming the JDS.

Congress leader Siddaramaiah greets the gathering at Moratagi village in Sindagi taluk on Monday

Siddaramaiah hit out at the Centre over soaring inflation. "Even the youth are struggling to make a living by selling pakodas as the prices of cooking oil have skyrocketed. Modi has increased the government's debt to over Rs 82 lakh crore, while it was less than Rs 50,000 crore when the Congress was in power," he said.

"BJP leaders, including Bommai, are afraid to demand the state's GST share. The Centre is meting out step-motherly treatment to Karnataka. The State Government is making efforts to turn the entire state saffron. Police were seen celebrating Ayudha Pooja wearing kesari clothes. People should not vote for money and religious intentions," warned Siddaramaiah.

KARNATAKA ASSEMBLY BYPOLLS DECIDE

Govt withholds move to privatise MySugar

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

BRINGING cheer to sugarcane growers of Mandya and surrounding areas, Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai on Monday said that the State Government will set aside an earlier Cabinet decision to privatise the loss-making Mysuru Sugar Company Ltd (MySugar).

Bommai made this announcement after chairing a marathon meeting with farmers and elected representatives from Mandya here on Monday. "We will commence crushing sugarcane at the factory from the next season. All necessary steps, including overhauling the machinery, will be taken up," Bommai told reporters.

The decision to privatise the state-owned sugar factory had come under severe criticism from farmers, and the Opposition JDS and Congress. Farmers have been staging an indefinite protest for several months now demanding that the State Government revive the factory that was shut four years ago.

Bommai said an expert committee will be constituted to study the condition of the machinery and other technical aspects, finances required to restart the operations and the working capital needed to procure cane from farmers will be discussed with bankers. "To make it financially viable, experts will study the aspect of value addition of converting the byproduct— molasses— either to use it in distillery or convert it into ethanol," Bommai added.

He clarified that an efficient managing director with industrial background will be appointed and also an accountant will be appointed by taking help from the Accountants General, Karnataka. "Based on the committee's report, the Cabinet will take a final call on making the factory operational in a full-fledged manner as it is inevitable in the wake of the previous Cabinet's decision to privatise the factory," he clarified.

Sugar Minister Shankar Patil Munenakoppa, ministers KC Narayana Gowda (who is also MLA from Krishnarajpet), ST Somashekar, and JC Madhuswamy, Mandya MP Sumalatha Ambareesh, MLAs CS Puttaraju and Raveendra Srikanatiah, Chief Secretary P Ravikumar and Additional Chief Secretary to the Finance Department ISN Prasad were present at the meeting.

Answer phone calls of people, officials told

ENS @ Bengaluru

THE State Government has issued an order to all government officials who work in direct contact with people, right from village accountants to district deputy commissioners, to answer calls from the public as well as elected representatives.

Principal Secretary to the Revenue Department, Tushar Girinath, in an order, has directed the officials to either answer calls or call back without fail. It is the duty of the officials to address people's woes and also interact with them, communicate and address issues raised by elected representatives, he noted.

Girinath stated that the officials are given phones from the government and the bills too are paid by it and hence, it is their duty to receive calls from people and addresses their problems.

Some government employees, however, have expressed displeasure over the move. An official from the Revenue departmen said, "We agree that we have to work for the people and elected representatives. But, if we keep answering calls or calling people back, when we will get time to work?"

Will complain against minister for 'anti-party activity', claims ex-MLA

DEVARAJ B HIREHALLI
@ Tumakuru

ALL may not be well in the Tumakuru district unit of the BJP, as former BJP MLA B Suresh Gowda has accused Law Minister J C Madhuswamy of anti-party activities to help rival party MLAs. "I will write to BJP national president J P Nadda, Union Home Minister Amit Shah and even Prime Minister Narendra Modi that Madhuswamy has been creating confusion among the electorate over irrigation projects implemented by the BJP government," he told reporters on Monday.

The minister, who is in charge of Tumakuru district, had reportedly made a statement recently that the Gulur-Hebburu lift irrigation project in Tumakuru Rural Assembly constituency is unscientific, given the amount of the electricity involved to lift water from the Hemavathi river.

Taking note of it, Gowda, who represented the constituency twice and lost in the 2018 Assembly polls, asked Madhuswamy whether the project, implemented by the BJP government when B S Yediyurappa was Chief Minister and Basavaraj Bommai was Water Resources Minister, was a dud. "I will also write to the CM to conduct a probe into execution of the project and expose the facts. Madhuswamy creating confusion will only help rival parties," he remarked. In a way, Madhuswamy has been targeting Yediyurappa and also Chief Minister Basavaraja Bommai, he alleged.

Meanwhile, Gowda's rival and Tumakuru Rural JDS MLA D C Gowrishankar's bonhomie with Madhuswamy has also been questioned. The JDS MLA has apparently been heaping praise on the minister quite often for helping in the release of Hemavathi river water to tanks in the region. Madhuswamy had also reportedly made a statement against the release of Hemavathi water to Madaluru tank in Sira taluk, which Yediyurappa had made a poll plank in the Sira bypolls. Sira BJP MLA Dr C M Rajesh Gowda had also faced embarrassment.

According to sources, both Suresh Gowda and Madhuswamy have been engaged in a turf war for some time now. As Gowda had appointed a member from Madhuswamy's rival camp as president of party's Chikkanayakanahalli taluk unit, the latter was annoyed. Eventually, Madhuswamy and former minister Sogadu Shivanna managed to get Suresh Gowda eased from the district BJP president's post. They are now pitching from Hebbaka Ravishankar, also a Lingayath, to take over as district president.

I will also write to the Chief Minister to conduct a probe into execution of the project and expose the facts. Madhuswamy creating confusion will only help rival parties

Minor girl poisons four of family

Felt neglected by parents and siblings, mixed pesticide with ragi balls, reveals police probe

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Chitradurga

THE Chitradurga police have made a breakthrough in a case involving a food poisoning incident which killed four members of a family, and moved legal action against a juvenile.

On July 12, 2021, four members from the same family succumbed due to food poisoning at Gollarahatti of Bharamasagar hobli in Chitradurga district and one person who was critical survived after undergoing medical treatment.

The deceased were identified as Thippa Naik (45), his wife Sudha Bai (40), his mother Gundi Bai (80), and daughter Ramya (16).

According to a press release issued by the Chitradurga police, the juvenile (one of the daughters of Tippa Naik) mixed pesticide in ragi mudde and served it to her family members.

All of them fell sick and were hospitalised. However, except one Rahul, the others lost their life.

On the basis of the FSL report, it was found that pesticide was mixed with the dish. The police collected ragi mudde samples, the aluminium utensil used in its preparation, and the viscera of the deceased and sent them to the lab.

Based on a complaint lodged by Rahul, son of Tippa Naik, who survived the incident, the police registered a case under the IPC.

An investigation team was constituted under the leadership of Police Inspector T N Madhu to nab the culprits.

According to the press release, the female juvenile was not being treated well and was scolded by her parents and other family members constantly.

On the contrary, her other siblings were treated well. This led the girl to think that if she killed them, then nobody would send her out on daily-wage work and no one would scold her.

She allegedly mixed pesticide in the ragi mudde that was served during dinner, said a release issued by the Chitradurga police.

After activists protest against conversion, cops arrest one

ENS @ Hubballi

THE police on Monday arrested a man for allegedly trying to convert a Dalit man into Christianity, while they continued the investigation into charges made by right-wing activists over forced conversions.

Late on Sunday evening, a small protest against forced conversions turned into a full-blown standoff between the police and Hindu activists. The protesters laid siege to the Navanagar police station and blocked the busy Hubballi-Dharwad road.

The activists alleged that Somu Avaradi, the arrested -- who is said to have converted to Christianity, was luring Vishwanath Boodur, belonging to Bhovi community, too to Christianity, saying he had earned a lot of money after changing his faith. Somu had asked Vishwanath to come to a prayer hall at Bhairideverakoppa on Sunday.

Hindu activists, who got the information, rushed to the spot and got into an argument with Somu. Though Somu denied their allegations, the activists beat him up and took him to the police station. As temperatures rose, Deputy Commissioner of Police Ramarajan arrived at the spot. A Hindu activist alleged that the DCP let the accused go free, triggering an intense protest. Local MLA Arvind Bellad left his campaigning at Hanagal midway, rushed to the spot and joined the protesters in the dharna.

The drama continued late into the night and right wing activists withdrew their protest only after Police Commissioner Labhu Ram assured them of taking action against the accused as well as the DCP.

The Navanagar police filed a complaint against the accused under the SC/ST (Prevention of Atrocities) Act and arrested Somu. The police commissioner too confirmed the arrest.

KERALA ON HIGH ALERT AS DAMS OPEN SHUTTERS

Flood warning issued in areas downstream, Pinarayi asks expert committee to be ready

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Kochi

IN the wake of the government's decision to open shutters of Idukki and Idamalayar dams, the regions along Periyar river in Ernakulam district have been put under high alert and all necessary measures have been taken to deal with any emergency situation.

All police stations in Ernakulam rural police limits have been geared up to handle any sort of emergency situation. Ernakulam rural police chief K Karthick has formed a special emergency response team to monitor the situation 24/7 and a control room has been set up at Aluva to analyse the situation round-the-clock. Officials said the squads of emergency response team have been deployed at various identified places in the district and 34 police stations have been elevated as special control rooms to deal with the crisis situation.

People have been advised to contact the control room for any emergency situation. "We have identified the places where relief camps can be opened if water-level rises alarmingly. Police will be deployed at the camps to ensure security of the inmates. There will be separate relief camps for Covid patients. People living in low-lying areas can contact police for any assistance including shifting of persons to camps and for supply of medicines," said a senior police officer.

Emergency response squads have been provided with earth movers, boats, generators and searchlights to deal with emergency situations. Police have also put heavy vehicles including Taurus lorries for evacuation and rescue operations in case of flooding. Police have warned people against crowding on river banks and bridges to see the water-level in rivers. Timely updates on water level will be available on the official Facebook page.

Rain damages paddy, brinjal crops in Udupi

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Udupi

PADDY and Mattu Gulla crop in Kaup taluk of Udupi have sustained serious damage as heavy downpour submerged the low-lying areas in the taluk. Farmers who were set to harvest paddy in Kaup, Majoor, Mallar, Belapu Palimar and Padoor among other places are dejected as they cannot harvest the crop as their fields are submerged.

Mattu Gulla (brinjal variety with GI tag) growers have also faced loss due to incessant untimely rain in the region. Mattu Gulla Growers' Association president Sunil D Bangera said that most of the brinjal growers have decided to replant the saplings as their planted saplings have rotten in the submerged rainwater. ''The present method of compensating just ₹135 per cent of crop damaged is unscientific. The compensation money has to be properly calculated,'' he said.

Submerged Mattu Gulla fields in Kaup taluk due to heavy rain in the region

It is to be noted that rental paddy harvesting machines had reached villages across Udupi this week, but farmers are apprehensive to start work as movement of those machines in the paddy field is not possible in the flooded fields. Revenue and the agriculture department officials have been asked by the farmers to conduct the field visit to assess the loss and prepare the list of farmers who have suffered huge losses due to heavy rains four days ago and compensate them immediately.

Praveen Shetty Gurme, a farmer from Kaup said that as the paddy fields are submerged, the harvesting machines cannot be taken to paddy fields. The farmers are also worried as they cannot sell the harvested crop for a good price as the government has not yet declared the minimum support price for paddy. Pushpalatha, an agriculture department official from Kaup taluk said that farmers should reach out to her at her office to apply for compensation for loss of paddy crop. "The compensation amount has been fixed at ₹6,800 per two and a half acres damaged by rain,'' she added.

Birthdays of celebs banned at children's homes in K'taka

ENS @ Bengaluru

DIRECTORATE of Child Protection has issued a circular directing stakeholders including district child protection units and childcare homes run by government and private organisations to ban birthday celebrations of celebrities or their children or officials and their children.

A circular issued by Directorate of Child Protection stated that children residing in homes run by government and private organisations are usually rescued from abusive parents, begging, sexual abuse, child marriages and many more.

Although there is a need to create a cheerful environment for the kids, the authorities said that cutting cake during the birthdays of celebrities or their children, or officials and their children have a negative impact in their minds as they don't get a similar chance to celebrate their own birthdays.

INSURING AGAINST FRIVOLOUS CLAIM REJECTIONS

A general insurance company recently rejected an accidental death benefit claim under its motor insurance plan on the pretext that the insured was riding a bike with 346 CC engine capacity, while as per the terms and conditions of the policy, the claim is payable only if the bike has a capacity of 150 CC or less. Insurance companies find many reasons to deny claims—partially or fully—but this case comes across as rather peculiar. If you look at a standard two-wheeler policy document, one would find it difficult to come across any such clause. But then how many policyholders have the wherewithal or patience to contest this legally. Going to the insurance ombudsman or fighting it out in consumer courts is easier said than done.

Insurance penetration in India at just 4.76% of GDP is one of the lowest—life insurance (3.76%) and general insurance (1%). Such low levels of insurance penetration signals a failure at many levels—from the government and regulator to insurers. For the longest time, insurance has been sold as an instrument for savings/investment rather than for giving protection against financial distress due to death (of the insured), medical emergency or any other damages to person or property. Despite all the talk and columns written in personal finance pages of newspapers, things haven't changed much. Mis-selling remains rampant. Prospective policyholders are not given proper information about exclusions and exceptions in a policy. Instead, the benefits are highlighted or overstated, with clauses or conditions in fine print played down. This results in rejection of claims when a policyholder needs it most. As many as 15% of health and motor insurance policy claims are rejected by insurers. In case of private sector insurers, the claims rejection ratio goes up to around 25% in case of health and motor insurance.

The insurance regulator—IRDAI—has been accused of being more considerate to the business interest of insurers than that of policyholders. It is time IRDAI takes a stand against such frivolous excuses for rejecting claims of policyholders. It can take some cue from SEBI, which has taken several steps to safeguard the interest of investors.

RISING CRIMES AGAINST WOMEN IN ODISHA

Odisha has reported four incidents of rape in the last three days. Three of them gangrape. A woman in her 50s, two minor girls and a teenage college student were the victims of the heinous crimes that have rocked the state. The college girl, from Balasore, was out on a scooter when she was raped by youth who followed her. The other cases are equally horrific in nature. The minor girl, all of 14, was kidnapped from Nabarangpur's Papadahandi and taken to neighbouring Koraput district where she was gangraped for three days by the two perpetrators. In all but one, the accused have been arrested. But that is not the point here. What is disturbing is the new low that law and order has hit in the state, so much so that criminals seem unafraid of the police. Just picture such a scenario in Uttar Pradesh and the outrage it would have unleashed. If brute facts matter, then Odisha reported 1,211 cases of rape in 2020 against 1,382 in the previous year. Going by the NCRB report, the rate of crime against women at 113 offences per 1 lakh population in Odisha is second only to Assam's 154. The state, once considered the safest, registered a near 10% rise in crimes against women in a year during the better part of which the country was in lockdown. The same year, with 12,605 cases, Odisha topped the country in the category of assault on women in an attempt to outrage modesty.

The Odisha Police top brass is quick to claim brownie points for its good work—and rightfully so. But it must also be held accountable for this plunging safety scenario for women. There has also been a spate of custodial violence in the last six months. The state capital Bhubaneswar has reported some chilling crimes including a rise in gruesome murders. Odisha continues to be among the top 10 states in terms of sexual offences against girl children. This trend must shake the Naveen Patnaik administration out of its slumber. It has had to its credit a set of reforms and out-of-the-box initiatives to stem the rot when crimes against women, especially minor girls, saw an increase in the past. It must ensure that a lax police system does not spoil the good work.

The law should be always above the politics of the day. However, in the UP model, the law is only an instrument of political power

Lawyer, Supreme Court of India

AMIT BANDRE

A local court in Lakhimpur in Uttar Pradesh has rejected the bail plea of Ashish Mishra, son of Union Minister Ajay Mishra, in the case over the murder of four farmers and a journalist. A few have been arrested in connection with the incident. The allegation is that the farmers and the journalist were killed by a convoy that deliberately ran over them and the accused had caused it. The video of the scene has shocked our mass conscience. The fact that a few BJP workers too were killed is quite sad and perturbing. After the incident, the UP Law Minister Brajesh Pathak visited the families of the BJP workers, while not caring to meet the families of the farmers who lost their lives.

An elected government and the ministers running it must act in terms of the Constitution and not merely based on their political beliefs or inclinations. Such an ethical metamorphosis is an imperative, given the letter and spirit of the oath that a minister takes as per the Constitution. Jawaharlal Nehru, on the eve of Independence, opined that after the country attains freedom, though there would be a Congress government, it won't be controlled by leaders of the Congress Party. This distinction should apply to every dispensation, irrespective of its political colour.

However, during the time of democratic crisis, this fine division becomes blurred, and the very government gets identified with the political party. Worse, even the political parties get reduced to an individual and the individual is glorified and equalised with the nation. Recall the slogan "India is Indira; Indira is India" formulated by D K Barooah, the Congress leader, prior to the Emergency (1975–77). At present, political idolatry is re-emerging in the country. It leads to a situation where Cabinet ministers act merely as political leaders with partisan interest, as it occurred with the UP law minister. This is an indication of democratic degeneration. Tarunabh Khaitan of Oxford University says that right from 2014, the Central government "consistently sought to erase the distinction between the party and the state by incrementally, but systemically, seeking to undermine or capture mechanisms that seek executive accountability". A reflection of the process is also discernible in states like UP, Assam and Gujarat. A significant impact of this democratic destabilisation is clearly manifested in the uprooting of rule of law in such states.

The Lakhimpur incident narrates a changed idea of law enforcement that negates the tenets of constitutionalism. It tells us about much more than mere criminalisation of politics. It was in the Manoj Narula case (2014) that the Supreme Court said that "criminalisation of politics is an anathema to the sacredness of democracy". In the judgment, the court emphasised the significance of constitutional morality and good governance. The court said: "The faith of the people is embedded in the root of the idea of good governance which means reverence for citizenry rights, respect for fundamental rights and statutory rights in any governmental action, deference for unwritten constitutional values, veneration for institutional integrity, and inculcation of accountability to the collective at large."

The Lakhimpur incident tells us about much more than mere criminalisation of politics. An elected government and the ministers running it must act in terms of the Constitution and not merely based on their political beliefs or inclinations

The Lakhimpur episode, along with several other incidents ranging from Unnao to Hathras, not only shows the increasing crime rate in UP, but also the regime's attitude towards it. According to a report by the National Crime Records Bureau, UP has recorded the highest number of murder cases in India (3,779) in 2020. Process of law often takes a back seat. It required the admonition of the top court even for arresting the accused in the Lakhimpur incident.

It is in the very same state that journalists are arrested and incarcerated for doing their job, by invoking draconian laws like the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act. Those who protested the Citizenship Amendment Act and the farm laws too had to face a similar predicament. False encounter killings and vigilantism has become the new normal. Almost every gathering of people with an agitational gesture was labelled unlawful, with Section 144 of the Criminal Procedure Code invoked. Activist Harsh Mander has pointed out that out of 139 persons jailed in 2020 under the National Security Act, 76 were accused of cow slaughter. Alleging 'love jihad', many couples were arrested. The state that instigated or abetted or justified heinous crimes like murder and rape was keen to brand personal intimacy a serious offence. Selective use or misuse or non-use of law, in accordance with the temporal requirement of those in power, is the new UP brand of justice.

States like Assam and Tripura followed suit. Recall the killing of two people in police firing in Darrang district in Assam. The video of the official photographer thrashing the corpse of a man points to the situation in our troubled times. There is no human dignity without true democracy. As jurist Ronald Dworkin opined, "equal concern and respect" are the hallmarks of rule of law. Liberty, equality and fraternity are non-negotiable facets of egalitarianism.

In constitutional democracies, rule of law rejects arbitrariness of power, as classically explained by the jurist A V Dicey. The law should be always above the politics of the day. However, in the UP model, the law is only an instrument of political power. Lakhimpur speaks volumes about the failure of a legal system, and of politics along with it.

NOBEL REWARD FOR THE LOVE OF LABOUR

KANDASWAMI SUBRAMANIAN

Served in the Ministry of Finance, GOI, and retired as Joint Secretary

With the tide of finance running high, studies on labour economics are not fashionable. Globalisation and the spread of multinational corporations have reduced the power of labour. The lone ranger battling against the tide is the International Labour Organisation (ILO). Fortunately, we have departments in certain universities and some economists devoting time to labour economics. Prof. David Card, who has been awarded this year's Nobel Prize in Economics, is one such.

He has a stellar record as an academic. A Canadian, he graduated from Queen's University in 1978 and secured a PhD from Princeton in 1983. He taught at the latter from 1983 to 1996 and held visiting appointments at universities such as Columbia and Harvard. While awarding him the Jacob Mincer Award in 2019, the committee said that "he has been a major force and leader in the field of labour economics for more than three decades".

One may wonder why Prof. Card chose labour economics as his career. He answered this in an interview given in December 2006 to the Federal Reserve Bank, Minnesota. He said he was more interested in the behaviour of humans than that of derivative assets. Unlike in finance, he found the labour markets more exciting as they have "... information issues, rigidities and a huge amount of heterogeneity...". Naturally, his work "focussed on how the labour market works for the lower-skilled or less-able people". He was keen to unravel why some people succeed and why others fail and whether they are relatable to the environment, institutions or the people themselves.

He applied these tenets to his research over long years on areas such as education, inequality and immigration. His early work that was closely related to the debates on minimum wages deserves special mention. All these issues are emotive or contentious politically and socially. Card is not swayed by a priori or ideological perceptions. He relies on dispassionate analysis of empirical data, their trends and correlation or causation before arriving at any conclusion. It is indeed this approach that has impressed the Nobel Committee that gave him the award.

Card is a prolific writer and has contributed over 100 journal articles and book chapters. He was Director of the Labor Studies Program at the National Bureau of Economic Research (NBER) from 2012 to 2017. He has several books to his credit and the Myth and Measurement: The New Economics of the Minimum Wage (1995) created waves. He has delivered prestigious lectures on his work. It is not practical to cover all his contributions. We take up a couple of them selectively.

Nobel awards in Economics have tended to favour economists who work on exotic, esoteric and algorithm-based areas that appear far removed from reality and the demands of the current times. By giving this year's award to David Card, the Nobel Committee has departed from this trend. ... Card has been steadfast in supporting immigration to the US. He is of the view that arguments against it are unsound and those who oppose them 'are driven by concerns outside of the narrow realm of economics'

America was a heaven for migrants from Europe and other parts of the world. The flood of people who escaped Nazi tyranny in the pre-World War 2 years is well recorded and celebrated. Sadly, in recent years, there is a backlash against immigrants there. America is now deeply polarised between those who favour migration and those against it. The election of Donald Trump as US President was the high point of the anti-immigration malaise. There are continuing and heated debates on immigration policy. Card has been steadfast in supporting immigration. He is of the view that arguments against immigration are unsound or untenable and those who oppose them, even economists, "are driven by concerns outside of the narrow realm of economics". He is sanguine about the impact of immigration on the US labour markets, which are remarkably able to adapt to the changing composition of local labour forces. They are also absorbed quickly and easily. Moreover, his research on the impact of immigration on wages indicated that any reduction "is of the order of a couple of percents nationwide over 25 years". Similarly, in his Ely Lecture on Immigration and Inequality (2009), he explained that "immigration has not had much effect on native inequality".

On the question of minimum wage, he has held forth much to the chagrin of hoteliers and retail chain owners. He defends a higher minimum wage for unskilled workers. His research survey covered most of the American cities. He established that "employment losses associated with a modest rise in minimum wages are hardly detectable". Later studies by other economists also confirmed this view.

Nobel awards in Economics have tended to favour economists who work on exotic, esoteric and algorithm-based areas that appear far removed from reality and the demands of the current times. By giving this year's award to Card, the Nobel Committee has departed from this trend. For the economist, it is an award for love of labour.

Any lessons learnt?

This is with reference to Tragedy sinks in: 9 kids among 25 dead (Oct 18). Kerala has again been hit by natural calamities. Is climate change alone responsible for the tragedy or are there lapses in land utilisation too? And what lessons have been learnt by the state after the recurring floods?
B V Thampi, Thiruvananthapuram

Remember Gadgil

In the wake of the new floods and deaths, we must remember Madhav Gadgil. Whenever a tragedy happens, we become Good Samaritans. Then we forget everything and start destroying Nature. The Gadgil report was ignored due to the nexus between politicians and religious leaders. Those opposing it are sitting in their AC bungalows and watching the news about the deaths of poor people with crocodile tears.

Kashmir killings continue

There seems to be no let up in the killings in the Kashmir Valley of migrant workers from Bihar and other places. The lieutenant governor's assurances after each incident appear to be hollow. Although there are reports of terrorists too being killed by the Jammu and Kashmir police and military, that's not the solution. The poor innocents must be saved from the cruelty of insurgents.
K Nehru Patnaik, Visakhapatnam

Vaccinating kids can wait

Experts have rightly red-flagged the recommendation to vaccinate children with Covaxin in the absence of proper studies (Vaccine for kids: What's the hurry, ask experts, Oct 18). Moreover, incidence of severe complications and mortality due to Covid is extremely low in children, prompting them to question the need to vaccinate them at this juncture. Vaccinating children must await proper studies as it shouldn't harm them.

Our cosmopolitan outlook

This is with reference to the opinion article Khilafat and the perils of pan-Islamism (Oct 18). The author has dispassionately analysed the perils of pan-Islamism in the world in general and in India in particular by aptly recollecting the Khilafat and Hijrat movements from around a century ago. This nation has witnessed an onslaught for over 1,000 years but is still united. India has been cosmopolitan in her outlook for millennia thanks to noble doctrines such as Vasudeiva Kutumbakam and Sarve Jana Sukhino Bhavantu.

Extraordinary man

This is with reference to K I George no more (Oct 18). Here is a person who served in the Mangalore Municipality for over four decades, was instrumental in planning housing and industrial layouts in the city, and retired as town planning officer. What is extraordinary about him is he never owned a home and lived in a rented house. In his passing away, the city has lost one of its most honest and finest citizens.

India's brave hearts

It is surprising to learn that so many women in India had been battling invaders in those days (The unknown heroines of India, Oct 16). They are all brave hearts. It is the need of the hour to bring out the real history.

Instilling patriotism

The article brought to light the courage of Indian women. These should find a place in textbooks in schools and colleges and only then will we have patriotic young men and women.

NAMITA BAJPAI & HARPREET BAJWA @ Lucknow/Chandigarh

FARMERS in Punjab and Haryana squatted on rail tracks on Monday as part of the Samyukt Kisan Morcha's six-hour 'rail roko'. Rail services were thus paralyzed. However, the nationwide Rail Roko protest over the Lakhimpur Kheri violence evoked a mixed response across Uttar Pradesh.

The New Delhi-Amritsar Shatabdi Express stopped near Shambu station as protesters blocked railway tracks near Sahnewal and Rajpura. Also other trains were stopped on their tracks. A statement issued by the Northern Railway CPRO said: "So far, 150 locations in the northern Railway zone have been affected and operations of 60 trains hindered. Positive narrative to deflect Oppn attack a must: Nadda

MANISH ANAND @ New Delhi

EMPHASISING that ground-level feedback would decide the distribution of tickets and that the non-performers would not be spared, BJP chief JP Nadda tasked the national office bearers to build up a positive narrative in the poll-bound states.

The party functionaries holding the charge of the states were asked to activate workers to counter the negative perception being made by the Opposition parties on issues including farmers' agitations and price rise.

Nadda sought set the tone of deliberations by stating that India was closing to log 100 crore vaccinations, which is a key milestone in the backdrop of "pessimism spread by the Opposition parties over India's response to the Covid-19 pandemic". He specifically pointed out that the Narendra Modi government was pursuing a development agenda despite the Opposition working with a negative mindset.

It was learnt that the deliberations took note of the growing impact of the farmers' agitations and price rise, with the functionaries being asked to hit ground and hold meetings even in non-poll states to bring the government achievements at the centre stage of the public opinion.

The leaders were told clearly that the BJP would strictly abide by the feedback, including those of polling booth incharges, who would work in close coordination with the MPs, for deciding poll nominations. It was also stated that the PM's instructions be strictly carried out while activating the party workers to counter the Opposition plank.

Union Minister G Kishen Reddy is learnt to have given a presentation on "Azadi Mahotsav" and the programmes being planned to commemorate the birth anniversary of Subhash Chandra Bose. BJP national general secretary (Organisation) B L Santhosh gave a presentation about the organisational activities of the party.

WHO seeks more data from Bharat Biotech

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @New Delhi

THE wait for Emergency Use Listing (EUL) of Covaxin by the World Health Organisation is set to get longer as the UN health body on Monday said that it had sought additional input from Bharat Biotech.

Covaxin EUL by the WHO is particularly significant for those planning international travels as it will also pave the way for its recognition by many countries.

In a statement, the WHO said while it is aware that many people are waiting for its recommendation for Covaxin to be included in the EUL, it clarified that it "cannot cut corners" before recommending a product for emergency use. "We must evaluate it thoroughly to make sure it is safe and effective."

Bharat Biotech has been submitting data on a rolling basis and WHO experts have reviewed these data, it added.

"WHO is expecting one additional piece of information from the company today. The timeframe for the WHO EUL procedure is dependent on how quickly a company producing the vaccine is able to provide the data required for WHO to evaluate the vaccine's quality, safety, efficacy and its suitability for low- and middle-income countries," it said.

The agency said that when the information provided addresses all questions, WHO and the technical advisory group will complete the assessment and come to a final recommendation whether to grant EUL.

On its part, Bharat Biotech with help from the government has been pushing for the WHO recommendation which was expected to come by in September but was deferred for October due to requirement for additional data.

LAC troops to get refresher in Tibetan

MAYANK SINGH @ Tenga (Arunachal)

AMID a military standoff with China, India has formalized a course on Tibetan language and culture to "amalgamate its troops well with the people of Tibet."

"We have started a course on Tibetan language and culture through an MoU signed between the Indian Army and Central Institute of Himalayan Culture Studies (CIHCS) and Namgyal Institute of Tibetology, Sikkim," said a senior Indian Army officer. "A pilot course was completed in March in which 15 Army officers along with JCOs participated. The second course with 20 volunteers will be held in November."

CIHCS deputy director Kemo Padu said history, culture, philosophy, politics, demography and geopolitics will be the part of the six-week course vetted by the Army Training Command. The plan is to train one officer from every battalion posted in the forward areas and gradually develop proficiency among young and mid-level officers.

Explaining the aim of the course, another Army officer said it is aimed at making Indian soldiers understand the nuances of the culture and arm them with the language so that they can mix with the Tibetan population living on the Indian side of the LAC. This will wean the people away from the Chinese propaganda, he said.

There are people of the same tribes living on both sides of the LAC

REVIVAL AGENDA

PRIYANKA TO SHIFT BASE TO LUCKNOW FOR UP ELECTIONS

RICHA SHARMA @New Delhi

WITH the Uttar Pradesh polls around the corner, Priyanka Gandhi Vadra is all set to shift base permanently to Lucknow till elections are held for sending a message that the Congress is serious about its revival plans and looking to connect with people on the ground.

The general secretary in charge for UP, who seemingly succeeded in making a public opinion after the noises she made regarding Lakhimpur Kheri, is looking to engage with people at block and zila panchayat levels in constituencies where the party has performed well earlier.

"She will soon shift her base permanently to UP and will stay put till elections to overlook election campaign, candidate selection, possible alliances and strategy," said a senior leader.

Earlier, several leaders, including those from the opposition, had criticised Priyanka for running the show from Delhi, saying it reflected how much the Congress was serious about the welfare of UP.

On Sunday, Congress senior leader P L Punia said that she will be the face of the party's election campaign in UP. The Congress' biggest challenge is lack of support base and almost no organisation in several parts of the states.

Sources said that the party is looking to contest about 80-100 seats. There were around 40 seats where it came second and seven were won in 2017, they added.

"On these seats, the party is looking to repeat the candidates and declare the names early. While on other 40 seats, we are looking for strong candidates who can take on the BJP and have some support base also. Priyanka's strategy will be to focus on these seats and reach out to people to strengthen the party while taking up key issues at the state level," said a senior UP Congress leader.

Following the positive public opinion after the Lakhimpur Kheri episode, the party is looking to engage with people on the ground. On Saturday, the CWC meeting applauded Priyanka's stand. Senior leader Rahul Gandhi advised party leaders, workers not delay in reaching out to the affected people.

Sidhu silence on withdrawal of resignation puzzles Congress

RAJESH THAKUR @ New Delhi

CONGRESS leaders are puzzled over the silence of Punjab Congress chief Navjot Singh Sidhu on the withdrawal of his resignation.

Sidhu had resigned as the PCC chief on September 28. Apparently, he had let it be known his unease over the appointments and cabinet reshuffle undertaken by the new CM Charanjit Singh Channi. The very next day, however, he was back on board after an agreement was reached with Channi.

His absence at the wedding ceremony of the CM's son, however, re-highlighted the tension in the party. Then, after a meeting with Rahul Gandhi and others on October 14 in Delhi, Sidhu claimed that all his "concerns" had been sorted out.

"What he had promised to the party leaders on the withdrawal of resignation has not been followed. Sidhu's stony silence on the withdrawal of his resignation has baffled the party," said a leader.

Party sources say Sidhu continues to be annoyed with Channi. "Only God knows what he has in his mind," said a Congress leader about Sidhu's stance.

All issues will be resolved: Punjab CM

Chandigarh: A day after he met Navjot Singh Sidhu, Punjab CM Charanjit Singh Channi said all matters would be resolved. "Be it 13-point, 18-point, 21-point or 24-point, whatever the agenda is will be implemented. No point will be left out. It's alright that he (Sidhu) has raised the issues We have to implement the party's ideology, as the party is supreme." Sidhu has been flagging his objections, including the appointment of DGP and Advocate General. A Congress insider said Sidhu held marathon meeting with senior leaders Harish Chaudhary and Krishna Allavaru on Monday. But another meeting with Channi did not take place, the source added. Harpeet Bajwa

Patel insulted at CWC meet, alleges BJP

NEW DELHI: The BJP on Monday claimed that the recent Congress Working Committee meeting cast aspersion on the role of Vallabhbhai Patel on the integration of Jammu and Kashmir to the Union of India.

It accused Tariq Hameed Karra, a special invitee to the CWC, of making a statement that Patel in league with Muhammad Ali Jinnah wanted to trade off J&K.

BJP spokesperson Sambit Patra asked whether Sonia or Rahul Gandhi had objected to the remarks of Karra.

"Two days ago questions were raised on the role of Patel in the integration of J&K with India. An attempt was made in the meeting to spread misinformation about the history of J&K...," he said. "Will the Congress remove Karra from the CWC?" ENS

Naxalism, terrorism discussed at security meet chaired by Shah

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @New Delhi

UNION Home minister Amit Shah on Monday chaired a high-level security meeting with the police chiefs of all states and Union Territotries as well as those of all central police forces — CRPF, CISF, BSF, SSB and Assam Rifles.

Various security and policing issues were discussed in the biannual review meeting, officials said. The meeting is part of the exercise initiated by the home minister to meet the top police brass once in six months.

Terrorism and Naxalism were discussed at length in the National Security Strategies Conference that took place at the headquarters of Intelligence Bureau (IB) in the national capital.

Deliberations were detailed and expansive given the presence of all DGPs and DGs of central police forces. The conference deliberated on various internal security challenges

An MHA spokesperson

"Deliberations were detailed and expansive, given the presence of all DGPs and DGs of central police forces. The conference deliberated on various internal security challenges and discussed ways to tackle them firmly," a home ministry spokesperson said.

While the meeting covered a wide range of security issues, the developments in Jammu and Kashmir — which has been witnessing a spate of targeted killings of migrant labourers — were also discussed in the meeting, sources said.

In October so far, 13 civilians — five of them coming from other states — have been killed by terrorists in Jammu and Kashmir, setting off a wave of panic among the people. An official said this indicates that the terrorists want to drive people from other states out of Kashmir.

On Sunday, two men from Bihar were gunned down by terrorists in Kashmir's Kulgam district. Twenty-four hours earlier, a gol-gappa hawker from Bihar and a carpenter from Uttar Pradesh were shot dead in the Kashmir Valley.

The security forces have also intensified anti-terror operations killing 13 militants so far, according to the Jammu and Kashmir Police.

The series of attacks on civilians come days before the home minister is to make his maiden visit to Jammu and Kashmir since the erstwhile state was bifurcated into two Union Territories and its special status granted under the Constitution was scrapped in August 2019.

Fear-stricken migrants exiting Kashmir

Worried over targeted killings, workers from other states rush to Jammu in buses, cabs and trains from Srinagar

FAYAZ WANI @ Srinagar

Migrant workers arrive at Srinagar Railway Station on Monday. Killings of non-residents by militants have spread fear | PTI

AFTER the spate in targeted killings of non-resident labourers by militants in Kashmir, non-locals are leaving the Valley in fear.

"We are scared. I am a gol gappe seller. Two gol gappe sellers have been killed here. One of them, Arbind Kumar, who was killed in Iddgah area of Srinagar a few days back was a neighbour in my native village. Now, I am fearing for life and leaving for home," said Vikas Chaudhary, a Bihar resident.

Many non-local skilled and unskilled labourers have left Srinagar in J&K Road Transport Corporation (JKRTC) buses, cabs and trains for Jammu.

Another Bihar resident Ashish Kumar, who is a labourer and staying in Srinagar, said after the targeted killings, his relatives back home were worried about his safety. "On the insistence of my family and on account of the situation, my family and I are leaving for our hometown. It is better to go home than to risk our lives."

As many as 12 civilians, including five non-locals, three minority community members and three local Muslims, have been killed by militants in the Valley this month.

"It is for the first time that non-local labourers are being targeted by militants in Kashmir. It has spread fear," said Mukesh Kumar of Bihar. He said his family back home were insisting on his return. "I am leaving Kashmir with a heavy heart," Mukesh said.

Dananjay, another non-local labourer from Bihar, said he was also leaving because of security worries. An ice cream seller, Dananjay said he had been living in the Valley for six years but never faced such a situation before.

Another non-local labourer Manilal Paswan said none forced them to leave the Valley. "We are leaving on our own because of the security situation. Kashmiris have been very hospitable and always treated us with respect," he added.

Terrorists have zeroed in on Biharis: Nitish

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR @ New Delhi

BIHAR Chief Minister Nitish Kumar said on Monday that this time, "terrorists in Jammu and Kashmir have zeroed in on Biharis." "The killing of Bihari workers by the terrorists who barged into their room in J&K was not of normal nature. Something dangerously peculiar is happening in J&K," Kumar said.

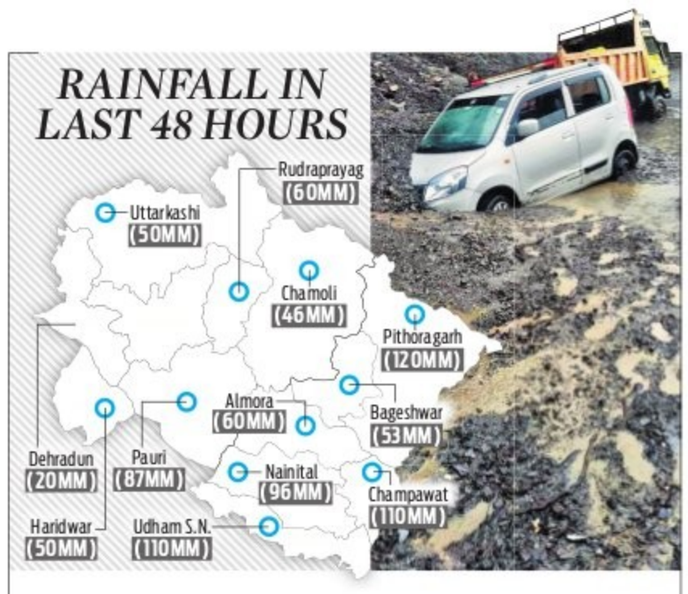
Stating that J&K was an integral part of India and everyone had the right to go there, Kumar said, "Outsiders including Biharis must not be targeted."

"Kuch to garbari hai aur action hona chahiye" (Something is amiss and action must be taken)," he said on Monday.

Meanwhile, a pall of gloom has descended over the houses of Yogendra Rishidev (35) and Raja Rishidev (32), who were gunned down by the militants in J&K on Sunday. Both Yogendra and Raja were working as labourers in J&K.

"Where is my son Yogendra? He said he would send me money?" Karni Devi (50) would say whenever she regained her consciousness. Devi had fainted on hearing the news about her son getting killed. Yogendra had gone to J&K promising his mother to build a new house from his earnings. He is survived by three minor children.

Tej Rishidev — the father in-law of Yogendra — told media that his minor grandchildren were shocked to such an extent that none of them had eaten anything since Sunday night. "How we will be able to keep all these children after the death of their father who was the lone breadwinner of the family? Rinku, the wife of Yogendra, has got bed-ridden after hearing about Yogendra."



5 DEAD, CHAR DHAM YATRA HALTED AS RAINS LASH U'KHAND

VINEET UPADHYAY @ Dehradun

INCESSANT rains have been lashing parts of Uttarakhand since October 16, forcing the state to temporarily suspend the Char Dham Yatra on Monday.

Higher reaches of the hill state, including Darma, Vyas and Johar Valley, have received snowfall of more than six inches in the last 48 hours.

Earlier, the MeT department issued a warning for three days from October 17. Districts of Pauri, Uttarkashi, Rudraprayag, Almora, Nainital, Bageshwar, Champawat, and Chamoli remain worst affected by incessant showers.

Red alert for more rains

The state Met department has sounded red alert for rains in parts of the state. It advised people living in landslide-prone areas to remain alert

Home Minister Amit Shah spoke to Chief Minister Pushkar Singh Dhami on Monday and assured him of all help.

At least five people, three in Pauri district and two in Champawat district, have died due to rain-induced landslides. Many villagers have said that they have not seen such rainfall in their lifetime. The government has instructed authorities in all 13 districts to take precautionary measures. The government has already deployed 34 teams of State Disaster Response Force (SDRF) across all districts.

Anil Sharma, assistant commandant from the SDRF who is stationed in Srinagar in Pauri district, said: "We are monitoring the situation and on alert 24x7. Our workforce and equipment are all in place for immediate rescue efforts."

Hundreds of villagers are stranded following 50 minor landslides that have blocked over 59 connecting roads. More than 200 people trapped in Purnagiri of Champawat district were rescued while over 2,000 pilgrims of Char Dham Yatra were sheltered at safe locations.

Bikram Singh, director of Uttarakhand MeT department said, "The rains are result of western disturbances. This can continue at least till Tuesday evening." The meteorological department issued a special release on Sunday sounding a red alert for rains in several parts of the state.

Rahul blames Centre's policies

NEW DELHI: Congress leader Rahul Gandhi on Monday held a meeting with party leaders from Jammu and Kashmir to discuss the targeted attacks on civilians by militants. The meeting was attended by J&K in-charge Rajni Patil, senior leader Ghulam Ahmad Mir and Congress Working Committee member Tariq Hameed Karra. "Modi government's incompetence and misgovernance has turned J&K into a hotbed of terrorism. The rising violence against civilians is a result of PM Modi and HM Amit Shah's weakness," the party said. During the CWC, the party condemned the killings and said the responsibility of bringing the perpetrators to justice is with the Centre

CRPF DG in Valley to fasten work of security camps for labourers

SANA SHAKIL @ New Delhi

ZAHOOR PUNJABI

AIMING to fasten construction of special security camps for non-resident workers in Kashmir, the DG of CRPF, who also happens to be the DG of NIA, flew to the Valley on Monday to review the arrangements.

Sources said the main purpose of his visit, which comes in the wake of a spate in targeted killings of non-locals, is to review the final arrangements made for the proposed security camps, the construction work on which is likely to begin soon.

Highly placed sources said that the DG, Kuldeep Singh asked agencies to compile data on the number of non-locals in the Valley and the present security arrangements available for them. Singh, who would be camping in the Valley for next few days, would apprise the home ministry about the number of camps that would be required, the timeline in which these camps could be readied and the necessary resources that would be required to build these camps, a top government functionary told this newspaper.

"The Union Ministry of Home Affairs is likely to deploy more CRPF companies in the Valley for the protection of these camps. Orders to this effect may be issued soon," the official said.

Sources said that for the time being, senior security officials were toying with the idea of converting schools that were not in use into temporary shelters for the non-locals. "Details such as the number of non-locals are being compiled along with the security arrangements that have been made for Pandits, Sikhs and non-locals living in Kashmir," said a senior security official.

A similar plan to secure non-locals in Kashmir had been put in place right after the abrogation of Article 370.

Samajwadi Party MLAs protest outside UP Assembly in Lucknow on Monday | PTI

UP House: Rebel SP MLA bags deputy speaker post

NAMITA BAJPAI @ Lucknow

WITH just five months left for the incumbent BJP government, the Uttar Pradesh Assembly elected a deputy speaker after a gap of 14 years, at a special single-day session on Monday. Rebel Samajwadi Party (SP) MLA Nitin Agarwal walked away with the honour.

Significantly, the ruling BJP had extended support to Agarwal who got 304 votes of the total 368 polled. He is the son of Naresh Agarwal who had switched over to the BJP from the SP ahead of 2019 elections.

The SP had fielded its lawmaker from Sitapur, Narendra Singh Verma, against Agarwal. Verma secured just 60 votes while four votes were declared invalid. In the House of 403, BJP and allies have 304 MLAs while the SP has 49. The seven Congress MLAs had boycotted the polling process.

However, one rebel Congress MLA Aditi Singh from Rae Bareli cast her vote. In the notional election for deputy speaker, cross voting took place as the SP managed to get 13 more votes than its strength.

As per sources, seven rebel MLAs of the BSP voted in favour of the SP candidate.

The single-day special session of the UP Assembly began on a stormy note with opposition lawmakers protesting over price rise and farmers' plight.

SP MLAs demonstrated at the Assembly gate while the Congress demanded debate on the farmers' issues.

'Veggie prices will stabilise only after fresh arrivals'

"THE prices of vegetables such as peas, cauliflower and beans have sharply increased as heavy rains damaged crops in both these states and neighbouring Himachal Pradesh. Prices of onions have shot up as there is short supply due to rains in Maharashtra, from where the bulk supplies come. Besides, rising prices of diesel have increased transportation costs manifold," said a trader.

Kedar Sirohi, a big vegetable farmer from Harda district in Madhya Pradesh, also blamed these factors for the rise. Farmers in the state said prices largely soared in the past three-four days. Due to heavy rains, the demand-supply gap has increased, which has jacked up the prices of vegetables like cauliflower, brinjal, okra etc.

In Uttarakhand, the rates of most commonly used vegetables such as potato, tomato, onion and chilli have gone up by 50 per cent. Potato prices have gone up from ₹20 a kg to ₹30-50 while onion, selling at ₹20 earlier, is now priced at ₹70. "Routes are blocked due to heavy rains in the plains and due to landslides in the hills. Once the weather conditions improve, the rates will stabilise," said Ramesh Kumar, a wholesaler.

Maharashtra, which is one of the major producers of onions and some other vegetables, saw massive floods which damaged the crops. Devidas Pingale, a trader at Vashi, said the new arrivals will be delayed.

Ajay Mishra doesn't deserve to be a minister, says Guv

RESPONDING to a question, he said Ajay Mishra should have been asked to resign. "It is completely wrong. Resignation of the minister should have been sought the day Lakhimpur Kheri incident took place. Otherwise, too, he doesn't deserve to be a minister."

Malik, an outspoken Jat leader from western Uttar Pradesh, alleged that BJP leaders can't even enter any village in Meerut, Baghpat and Muzaffarnagar in UP, which is headed to polls in February. Commenting on the killings of civilians in J&K, he said: "When I was Governor of J&K, nothing was happening. There was no stone pelting; nobody was dying. No terrorists dared enter within 50 km of Srinagar. Now, they are killing openly in the city. It is saddening."

Four more arrested in Lakhimpur Kheri case

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Lucknow

With the fresh arrests, total number of persons held so far in connection with the violence has touched 10. At the time of arrest, the SWAT team seized a licensed revolver and three bullets from the possession of Tripathi, said police sources.

The police had been looking for Jaiswal, who was seen in one of the videos related to the violence. Meanwhile, main accused Ashish Mishra, his co-accused Ankit Das, Latif aka Kale, and Das's driver Shekhar Bharti were sent to Lakhimpur jail after the completion of their police remand.

One dies as cop's car runs over two girls

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Chandigarh

ONE girl died and other was injured after they were run over on Monday by a car driven by a police official.

Both girls were standing on roadside at Dhanewali village on Jalandhar-Phagwara highway when the car hit them. While one of them died on the spot, the other girl was rushed to a local hospital where she is undergoing treatment. The deceased girl was identified as Navjot Kaur, who was working at a local car showroom.

Sources said the vehicle was driven by Amrit Pal Singh, an inspector posted at the Punjab Armed Police headquarter in Jalandhar. Singh, who was alone in the vehicle at the time of mishap, was arrested later.

Following the mishap, traffic on the highway was blocked by the locals who sat on a dharna. Sources said that as per CCTV footage, the car knocked down the girls even as the victims tried to ran away.

Motorcycle rally in honour of 1971 war heroes

Among the various events held recently in Raipur, a key attraction was the 71 motorcycles that criss-crossed the city, carrying victory flame of Swarnim Vijay Varsh, commemorating the 50th anniversary of the nation's victory over Pakistan in the 1971 war. The flame — a symbol of valour and sacrifices of the Indian soldiers — was received by Governor Anusuiya Uike at a function in Rajbhawan on October 13. Major programmes held as part of the celebration included an exhibition, children's paining competition, military band concert, NCC's patriotic dance drama among others.

66 Hindu homes attacked as mob fury rages on in B'desh

Vandals set fire to at least 20 houses amid protests by minorities demanding punishment for perpetrators of last week's violence

DHAKA

A mob has damaged 66 houses and set on fire at least 20 homes of Hindus in Bangladesh over an alleged blasphemous social media post amidst protests by the minority community against temple vandalism incidents during the Durga Puja celebrations, authorities said on Monday.

The arson attack by the mob of over a hundred people happened late on Sunday on a village in Rangpur district's Pirganj upazila, about 255 kms from here, the bdnews24.com reported.

The police rushed to a fishermen neighbourhood as tension mounted over a rumor that a young Hindu man of the village had 'dishonoured religion' in a Facebook post, Assistant Police Superintendent Mohammad Kamruzzaman told reporters. "The incident took place after 10 PM yesterday but fire fighters doused the blaze within a short period (and) the situation is now under full control," he said. No casualties were reported but 66 houses were damaged and 20 burnt during the attack, the officer said. As many as 52 suspects have been arrested while a manhunt was launched for more suspects under a "combing operation" in collaboration with other security forces, he added.

As the police stood guard around the man's home, the attackers set fire to other homes nearby, the report said.

The Fire Service Control Room said that their report from the scene indicates that 29 residential houses, two kitchens, two barns and 20 haystacks belonging to 15 different owners were torched in Pirganj's Majhipara, it said, adding that an "unruly crowd" has been identified as the cause of fire.

The fire service received a report of the fire at 8.45 PM and finally put it out by 4.10 AM, the report said. The arson incident occurred amid rising communal tension over an alleged blasphemy incident at a Durga Puja venue in Cumilla which led to attacks on Hindu temples and clashes between vandals and the police in Cumilla, Chandpur, Chattogram, Cox's Bazar, Bandarban, Moulvibazar, Gazipur, Chapainawabganj, Feni and other districts. Dozens of people have been arrested over the attacks and the spread of communal hatred on social media, the report said.

Four assumed Muslim bigots were killed in Haziganj, the worst scene of the violence, on Wednesday and Thursday, while the body of a Hindu devotee was found at a pond in nearby Begumbanj of Noakhali district. Muslim and Hindu protestors took to the streets at different areas of the country, including the capital Dhaka in the past several days.

The Bangladesh Hindu-Buddhist-Christial Unity Council said at least 70 puja pavilions and temples were attacked in the previous three days of violence. The council alleges that at least four Hindu devotees have died in the attacks in Chandpur and Noakhali. PTI

The attacks included vandalism of and setting fire to 559 houses and 442 shops and businesses of the Hindu community, it said. At least 1,678 cases of vandalism in the same period, it said.

Taliban attempt to do an Af in Pak

PESHAWAR

IN Pakistan's rugged tribal regions along the border with Afghanistan, a quiet and persistent warning is circulating: The Taliban are returning.

Pakistan's own Taliban movement, which had in years past waged a violent campaign against the Islamabad government, has been emboldened by the return to power of the Taliban in Afghanistan.

They seem to be preparing to retake control of the tribal regions that they lost nearly seven years ago in a major operation by Pakistan's military. Pakistani Taliban are already increasing their influence.

Local contractors report Taliban-imposed surcharges on every contract and the killing of those who defy them.

In early September, for example, a contractor named Noor Islam Dawar built a small canal not far from the town of Mir Ali near the Afghan border. It wasn't worth more than $5,000 (₹3.76 lakh). Still, the Taliban came calling, demanding their share of $1,100 (₹82,775). Dawar had nothing to give and pleaded for their understanding, according to relatives and local activists. A week later he was dead, shot by unknown gunmen. His family blames the Taliban.

Pakistan Army troops observe an area from hilltop in Khyber district | AP

Pakistan's Taliban, known as the Tehrik-e-Taliban or TTP, is a separate organisation from Afghanistan's Taliban, though they share much of the same hardline ideology and are allied. The TTP arose in the early 2000s and launched a campaign of bombings and other attacks, vowing to bring down the Pakistani government and seizing control in many tribal areas. The military crackdown of the 2010s managed to repress it. But the TTP was reorganising in safe havens in Afghanistan even before the Afghan Taliban took over Kabul on August 15.

"The Afghan Taliban's stunning success in defeating the American superpower has emboldened the Pakistani Taliban...They now seem to believe they too can wage a successful jihad against the Pakistani 'infidel' state and have returned to insurgency mode," said Brian Glyn Williams, Islamic history professor at the University of Massachusetts, who has written extensively on jihad movements.

The TTP has ramped up attacks in recent months.

More than 300 Pakistanis have been killed in terrorist attacks since January, including 144 military personnel, according to the Islamabad-based Pakistan Institute for Conflict and Security Studies.

The events in Afghanistan have also energised the scores of radical religious parties in Pakistan, said Amir Rana, executive director of the Islamabad-based Pakistan Institute for Peace Studies.

These parties openly revile minority Shia Muslims as heretics and on occasion bring thousands on to the street to defend their hardline interpretation of Islam. One party, the Tehreek-e-Labbaik Pakistan, has a single agenda: to protect a controversial blasphemy law. The law has been used against minorities and opponents and can incite mobs to kill simply over an accusation of insulting Islam.

Already buffeted by a growing religiosity, Pakistani society is at risk of transforming into one similar to Taliban-run Afghanistan, Rana warned. AP

Pak Oppn calls on ISI boss to step down

ISLAMABAD

IN an unusual development, Pakistan's Opposition parties have demanded resignation of spy agency ISI chief Lt Gen Faiz Hameed at a public rally in Punjab province. "Faiz Hameed istifa do (tender resignation)" was the demand made in the Opposition alliance — Pakistan Democratic Movement (PDM) — rally in Faisalabad on Saturday.

Even slogans were raised against the incumbent spymaster who has been accused by the Opposition especially Pakistan Muslim League-Nawaz (PML-N) of "political engineering" to install the puppet regime of Imran Khan.

Maryam Nawaz

The local media censored the anti-Hameed slogans and content in the rally. On Sunday, the video clip demanding resignation from Lt Gen Hameed went viral, prompting federal interior minister Sheikh Rashid to warn PML-N vice president Maryam Nawaz against "playing with fire." "Faiz Hameed-Tender resignation" was one of the top trends on Twitter in Pakistan on Sunday. "I ask Maryam to refrain from bashing the armed forces in the public meetings. Her style of politics had already caused enough damage to her party," he said.

Since there has been a standoff between civil and military on the appointment of the ISI chief as the PM is reportedly reluctant to replace Hameed, Maryam said Imran Khan is undermining state institutions to satisfy "his selfish zeal". PTI

Govt may tweak IDBI Bank bidding

Consortiums likely to be allowed to participate in the bidding so as to get better valuation

ANURADHA SHUKLA @ New Delhi

AS the government is planning to divest its stake in the IDBI Bank, it is considering allowing consortiums also to bid for the bank to get better valuation and generate more interest in the bidding process.

According to the sources in the ministry of finance, Department of Investment and Public Asset Management (DIPAM), in an internal discussion held last week, including the transaction advisors and other stakeholders, the general consensus was to allow the consortium to participate in the bidding process, so that they can garner maximum interest on the bidding.

"The general consensus, including all advisors is that the government should allow consortiums to participate in the bidding process. This was not allowed earlier. However, the consortiums will be as per the guidelines decided by the RBI. There is already discussions ongoing with the central bank on deciding on the fine prints regarding the IDBI divestment," a finance ministry official told TNIE.

According to the official, the department had already sought clarifications from the RBI, if business houses will be allowed to participate in the bidding process. However, RBI had already conveyed its reluctance to do so.

"Being a bank, IDBI comes under the RBI jurisdiction so naturally the final shape of expression of interest will depend strictly on what RBI allows as per its rulebook. The discussion with the central bank is likely to be concluded by mid of November as the target is to come up with EoI ahead by December," the official added.

The government has already given its nod for selling the entire stake in the private bank with transfer of management. LIC as a promoter owns 49.24% stake, whereas the government has 45.5% stake.

Another sticking point with IDBI divestment is its low market valuation, which is roughly about ₹64,000 crore. The Centre is expecting its valuation at least above ₹83,000 crore. As the bank is already out of RBI's prompt corrective action framework and has turned profitable for the first time in five years, the govt expects its valuation to enhance further.

Final shape of EoI to be decided as per RBI rule

According to a finance ministry official, the discussion with the central bank is likely to be concluded by mid of November as the target is to come up with EoI ahead by December

With Punch at ₹5.49L, Tata Motors eyes more SUV space

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

HOME-GROWN auto major Tata Motors on Monday said that it is eyeing a very dominating position in the SUV segment with the launch of Company's smallest SUV Punch (starting price ₹5.49 lakh).

"Hopefully a little better than that," Vivek Srivatsa, Head of Marketing – Passenger Cars, Tata Motors told TNIE when asked if Tata aims to be India's third largest SUV seller with the aggressively priced Punch. "This sub-compact SUV category should grow very well with Punch. We are confident of its success like our other products in the SUV segment, namely Nexon, Harrier and Safari."

In recent months, utility vehicle sales in India has taken over passenger car sales by a fair margin. Hyundai Motor and Maruti are the top players in the segment but are closely followed by M&M, Kia and Tata Motors. Tata Motors, which sold 74,120 units between April-September 2021, has increased its UV market share to 11.34%.

It was also the only major carmaker that registered an impressive growth of 21% in September when total passenger vehicle sales in India fell over 40% due to lower production.

Srivatsa said the festive season started pretty well for the company even though it is under production strain due to supply chain issues. "Last month our market share has gone in excess of 13% and demand continues to be very strong…Chip shortage is a global issue affecting every industry, including us. The issue is going to be there for some time and we will have to live with it. Our manufacturing efficiency has been far better than other manufacturers and we will try to keep optimizing it," said Srivasta.

Tata, which is India's largest EV seller with a market share of over 70%, also informed that they will come out with an electric variant of the Punch. "EV version of Punch is on the anvil…It will be there in the future," said Srivatsa. Tata is also the only carmaker which offers 3 EV models to customers and recently announced plans to roll out 10 new battery electric vehicles (BEV) in its domestic product portfolio by 2025. On rising fuel prices, Srivatsa said this is increasing awareness for EVs but hasn't impacted demand for 4-wheelers. He said there will be one more price hike in coming quarter due to rising commodity prices.

Fuel prices are 'leading to a big crest', pose a challenge, says FM

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

FINANCE Minister Nirmala Sitharaman has expressed concern over rising crude oil prices, which is emerging as a huge challenge, saying the uncertainty could upend some of her plans to get the economy back on track. She was speaking in an interview to an international news agency.

"The challenge I will face, and the teams are also watching in the ministry, is the way the fuel prices are leading to a big crest," Sitharaman said in the interview.

"This uncertainty is a big element for me, which is still imponderable and I don't know how much will have to be diverted from other most important considerations, and that's the challenge I see," she said.

Petrol and diesel prices have continued to rise across the country reached an all-time high. With the latest hike, the petrol price becomes ₹105.84 per litre while diesel will now cost ₹94.57 per litre in Delhi.

India is dependent on imports for almost two-thirds of its oil needs and its import of petroleum almost rose by three folds to $17.4 billion in September over $5.8 billion in the same month of 2020. International benchmark Brent crude has rallied to $85.67 per barrel and this along with coal crisis can impact the pace of recovery.

She also said that the government is pushing to get the Life Insurance Corporation (LIC) IPO done on time, however the internal valuation that is needed 'almost annually' for a company of LIC's size, 'hasn't been done and given that the 65-year old insurer hasn't ever been valued, the process will take time, she said.

"We are pushing to have it done," Sitharaman said in an interview with Bloomberg when asked if it will manage to complete it within the current financial year.

"The problem is not that we don't want it or we are pussyfooting on it now, it is more a question of doing the due process."

UltraTech Cement PAT declines 23%

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

ULTRATECH Cement Limited on Monday reported consolidated profit after tax (PAT) of ₹1,313.53 crore for the quarter ended September 2021, down by 23% from ₹1,702.63 crore reported in the June quarter.

On a year-on-year (YOY) basis, PAT grew by 13%. "Coal and pet coke prices nearly doubled in Q2FY22 resulting in energy costs rising by 17% YoY. The resulting impact on the company's operations was partially offset by reduction in power consumption and continuing focus on operational efficiencies," Ultratech said in a statement.

The Mumbai-based company's consolidated revenue came in at ₹12,017 crore, up by 1.6% sequentially and 15.7% YoY. Operating margins were down 370 basis points (bps) on a sequential basis and by 130 bps on a YoY basis due to rising costs.

With PLI boost, private capex cycle on the cusp of revival, say experts

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

The private sector investment cycle is all set for recovery as industrial investments are likely to increase going forward owing to the Production linked Incentive (PLI) scheme of the government, according to experts.

A report by rating agency Crisil says that industrial investment may rise 30% in the next two years – 2021-22 to 2023-24 – primarily on account of the PLI scheme.

"The PLI scheme has given a much-needed booster dose to flailing capex. Without it, capex would have likely taken nearly two years to touch the pre-pandemic levels. Actualisation of the scheme will result in aggregate industrial capex rising 1.3 times through fiscals 2022-2024 in comparison to fiscals 2018-2020," says the report.

The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) in its recent monetary policy report has also said that the PLI scheme is nurturing private investment.

Under the PLI scheme, the government plans to give a total cash incentive of ₹1.97 lakh crore across 13 sectors to promote manufacturing in the country. However, PLI is not the only trigger that convinces some experts that private capex would finally take off after years of moderation -- new investment had plunged to a 16-year low in 2020-21, with both private and government investment recording a sharp dip.

As per the Crisil report, accommodative monetary policies and lower interest rates; commodities upcycle, which has benefitted metal and cement players by repairing their balance sheets are some of the other key triggers.

According to RBI's state of the economy report, the broad-based reforms by the government focusing on infrastructure development, asset monetisation, taxation, telecom sector and banking sector should boost investor confidence and facilitate crowding in of private investment.

There are downside risks as well. "While we do believe that India is on the cusp of a private investment boom, especially given that the corporate deleveraging cycle has come to its end, weak domestic demand is the single most important reason why sustainable increase in private capex is multi quarters away," says Kunal Kundu, India Economist, Societe Generale Corporate and Investment Banking.

The Production linked Incentive (PLI) scheme push

- Industrial investment may rise 30% in the next two years – 2021-22 to 2023-24
- The government plans to give a total cash incentive of ₹1.97 lakh crore across 13 sectors under the scheme
- RBI recently also said that the PLI scheme is nurturing private investment

IRCTC stock jumps 313% in 2021; up 156% since July

ARSHAD KHAN @ New Delhi

IT has been a little over two years since the Indian Railway Catering and Transportation Corporation (IRCTC) became a publically listed company and during this period, its stock has given a return of over 17-times.

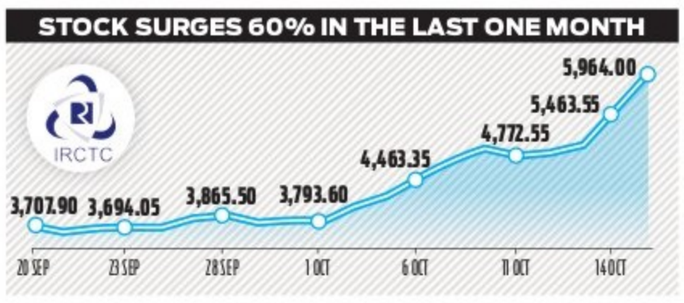
After a slow growth in its value last year when much of railway transportation was disrupted by Covid-19-led lockdown, IRCTC shares have again started rallying at a fast pace. In CY21, the stock has grown by nearly 313% and since the company had announced their stock-split plan in the ratio 1:5 late July, the shares have gone up by 156%. In the last one month alone, it has given a return of over 60% and on Monday it surged over 9% to close at ₹5,964 apiece on the NSE. When asked what is pushing the stock to new highs almost every session, Vinit Bolinjkar, Head of Research of Ventura Securities said that the stock has gone up due to various reasons.

"Given that the Indian railways is an extremely significant mode of passenger transport, the increasing number of vaccinated people along with the economy repopulating has resulted in normalised train operations…The company has increased its presence across verticals be it cruises or bus ticketing service, apart from its core business of train ticket services and catering," said Bolinjkar.

He added, "The railway routes connecting the four metro cities (which account for 52% of passenger traffic) are expected to decongest once the Dedicated Freight Corridor project is completed providing opportunity to increase capacity of passenger trains and thus lead to growth in passenger traffic which will benefit IRCTC in all its business segments."

Another analyst puts out that IRCTC's monopoly position in two out of its four operating segments, namely internet ticketing and Rail Neer, makes it a force to reckon with in the market. He feels that many investors' feel IRCTC is undervalued when compared to recently listed Zomato. "Given IRCTC's dominance in the digital space and it being a highly profitable firm in normal circumstances, it has become a favourite among retail investors," he said requesting anonymity.

Bolinjkar says the exponential rise in the stock has made it seem expensive in terms of valuation. IRCTC is trading at 153.21x FY22 earnings.



RBI fines SBI ₹1 cr, StanChart ₹1.95 crore

New Delhi: The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) on Monday imposed a monetary penalty of ₹1 crore on the country's biggest lender State Bank of India (SBI) and a ₹1.95 crore fine on Standard Chartered Bank for the violation of various guidelines. Fine levied on SBI for non-compliance with the directions contained in 'Reserve Bank of India (Frauds classification and reporting by commercial banks and select FIs) directions 2016', the RBI said in a statement. In a separate statement, the RBI imposed a ₹1.95 crore penalty on Standard Chartered Bank for non-compliance of the directions issued by the RBI.

MYTHS & LEGENDS

Unicorn a rare story? Not any more it seems as the elite club's expanding unabated

SAMIKSHA GOEL @ New Delhi

IT'S raining unicorns. One after another, while we continue to cheer for these start-up companies and celebrate the buoyancy in the ecosystem being seen this year, the term "unicorn" seems to have lost its bearings.

"Unicorn", a term describing a privately held start-up company with a value of over $1 billion, was originally coined by venture capitalist Aileen Lee in 2013, when there were only 39 companies that were considered unicorns, three from India – InMobi, Flipkart and MuSigma. These companies were called unicorns because it highlighted their rarity at that time. Only a tiny proportion of start-ups actually hit the desired valuation during that period and were said to be rare like the mythical creature unicorn.

In 2011, InMobi, a privately-held mobile adtech start-up, turned unicorn with a value of over $1billion. The company was India's first unicorn. Come 2016 and India had five unicorns in the elite club. Rare!

Fast forward to 2021 — with payments firm MobiKwik and online portal for cars CarDekho joining the unicorn club last week — the number of start-ups that have turned unicorn, just in this year so far, has jumped to 33.

Rare still? Not so much!

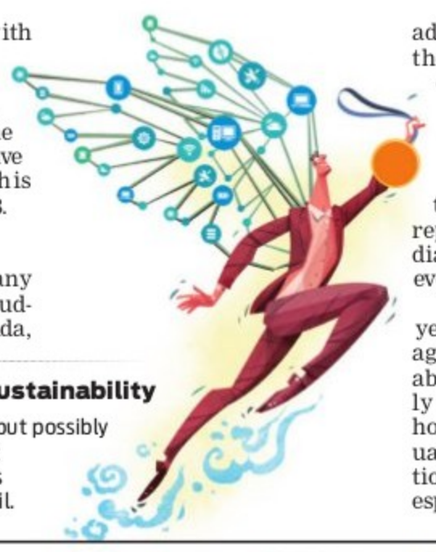
India has raced ahead of many developed economies, including China, the UK and Canada, adding 10 new unicorns during the third quarter of 2021, according to PwC India. Entrackr's monthly funding report also revealed that start-ups in India collectively raised $3.4 billion in September alone. Hurun India report 2021 further said that India added circa three unicorns every month over the last year.

Apparently, It's been a good year for start-ups, and investors agree that there has been an abundant supply of capital lately by venture capitalists. They, however, add that increased valuations are no longer an indication of the success of a start-up, especially a unicorn.

Deepak Gupta, Founder Partner, WEH Ventures, says with record amounts flowing into venture capital- the whole VC taxonomy has lost its bearings. "The 'rare' unicorns are now common-place and things like Series A, B no longer connote the size of a round - the range is really wide. Time for a new lexicon," says Gupta.

Young tech companies are raising extraordinary amounts of sums at earlier and earlier stages in their development with shorter intervals in between investment rounds, Ankur Bansal, Co-Founder and Director of venture debt firm BlackSoil, says, noting that on average, it is taking a start-up only seven years to achieve a $1-billion valuation.

The combined value of India's unicorns is greater than $200 billion, but possibly a vast majority of them have negative unit economics, implying that the unicorn status may not be equivalent to financial sustainability, Bansal explains, adding that survival and scaling of these start-ups without the continuous inflow of PE & VC funds is a difficult feat to achieve. "It's time to focus more on business model, customer impact, unit economics etc. and not just the status of a unicorn," Bansal adds.



Unicorn status may not be equivalent to financial sustainability

The combined value of India's unicorns is greater than $200 billion, but possibly a vast majority of them have negative unit economics, implying that unicorn status may not be equivalent to financial sustainability, says Ankur Bansal, Co-Founder and Director of venture debt firm BlackSoil.

Nationals back after Covid break with juniors

ASHIM SUNAM @ Bengaluru

SWIMMING has been the most-affected sport in India ever since the Covid-19 pandemic gripped the country last year. With pools remaining closed amidst the lockdown, swimmers could not even take a plunge in the water for a long time. However, with restrictions having mostly eased throughout the country, the Swimming Federation of India (SFI) is set to commence their calendar in Bengaluru. The 37th sub junior and 47th junior national aquatic championships will be held from Tuesday in the city. The senior meet is set to begin from October 26.

All the swimming events will be conducted at the Basavanagudi Aquatic Centre (BAC). Diving and water polo will be held at Kensington Swimming Pool and Nettakallappa Aquatic Centre, respectively. More than 1200 athletes are expected to take part. The junior meet holds extra importance as the SFI will be keeping a close eye to select probables for a 10-member team to South Africa for a training camp.

"The SFI will be selecting the probable swimmers from the junior national aquatic championships for a 10-member team for the upcoming joint training camp with the South African junior squad in early 2022," said SFI secretary general Monal Chokshi. Though the swimming body announced the dates for these nationals in August, it was a challenge for both the SFI and the state units to prepare. Gradually, the state championships were also held, thus paving way to send their respective teams and best swimmers for the prestigious competition at both the junior and senior level.

"This has been a huge challenge (with Covid-19 situation), particularly for swimming as a sport and recreation in India. Even today when roughly the second wave was waning, we felt we should start the calendar because training had virtually stopped. Swimmers were demotivated. 2022 is a big year with Asian Games, World Championships etc, and the calendar has to be full of events for our athletes to come back to form and we are starting with the national championship," said Chokshi.

The SFI official added they are not expecting great performances like the previous nationals as many have not had proper training. As a result, SFI has been lenient on the selection procedure for this national.

QUALIFICATION IN LINE, TIME FOR TIGERS TO ROAR

Unheralded Scotland's win over Bangladesh thanks to Chris Greaves' heroics has been one of the best stories of the T20I World Cup so far. These teams return to action as the second round of Group B ties gets underway on Monday.

SCOTLAND vs PNG LIVE ON STAR SPORTS 1 @ 3:30 PM

Scotland scripted a stunning win over Bangladesh in the last game to throw open the group and demonstrate why there are no easy games in a competitive tournament like the World Cup. Led by Chris Greaves, Scotland shocked Bangladesh, who are among the favourites to qualify from Group B. Scotland had defeated Namibia and Netherlands in warm-up games before the win against Bangladesh. It will be a huge boost going into the encounter against Papua New Guinea.

Papua New Guinea suffered a jarring ten-wicket defeat against Oman. While the scorecard suggests that it was a one-sided contest, there were some positives for the side. The team showed great spirit to recover from 0 for 2 to post a respectable 129, although the bowling was found wanting. Scotland will start as favourites and PNG will have their task cut out. The two teams have met twice previously in T20Is and Scotland have won both times.

B'DESH vs OMAN LIVE ON STAR SPORTS 1 @ 7:30 PM

Bangladesh was considered among the favourites to qualify from the group. The defeat at the hands of Scotland in their last game must have rattled them and they'll have to quickly regroup against Oman to stay in the hunt. Oman will pose a stern challenge and Bangladesh will have to rediscover the form which helped them secure series wins over New Zealand and Australia recently to stay in the hunt.

The only time Oman faced Bangladesh in a T20I, the former suffered a 54-run defeat. That is a distant memory and they are riding high with a spectacular win over Papua New Guinea. Bangladesh will prove a far bigger challenge, but there are plenty of positives for them. If Jatinder Singh and Aquib Ilyas can carry their form with the bat into this game and they tighten up their bowling and fielding, Oman will fancy their chances.

Dengue scare in India junior hockey camp

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Chennai

AS many as five athletes in the Sports Authority of India campus in Bengaluru were down with dengue over the last 10 days to two weeks. It is understood that at least four are junior hockey players, all of whom are in the core probables for the junior World Cup, to be held in Bhubaneswar from November 24. Dengue tests were ordered for athletes after they complained of 'fever and general tiredness', according to a SAI source. Apart from the five positive cases, other tests returned negative.

"All of them have recovered now," the source said. "We took one athlete to a hospital as a precautionary measure but all of them are back and feeling fine now. There are no problems." The mosquito-borne illness has been on the rise in the city and the SAI officials have never undertaken measures to keep it in check inside the premises.

No camp for under-23 wrestlers before Worlds

FIROZ MIRZA @ Chennai

UNLIKE their senior counterparts, under-23 wrestlers selected for the World Championships scheduled in Belgrade, Serbia, from November 1 to 7 will have to prepare individually at their respective bases before leaving for the competition venue. The Wrestling Federation of India (WFI) though sought permission from the Sports Authority of India (SAI) to organise a preparatory camp but the request has not been approved as yet.

As many as 30 gold medallists (10 each in men's freestyle, Greco-Roman and women's wrestling) from the U-23 Nationals held in Amethi, Uttar Pradesh from September 17 to 19 have been selected for the Worlds. "All of us have been waiting for WFI's call for the past several days but so far we haven't got any schedule. It looks like we have to assemble at the national capital on the day of our departure," one of the selected wrestlers told this daily on condition of anonymity. The first batch of Indian wrestlers is scheduled to fly for Belgrade on October 29. It is learnt that the WFI wanted to organise women's camp in Lucknow, UP and men's camp in Sonepat, Haryana. "It's already October 18. It's impossible to organise camps at such short notice as wrestlers and support staff need time to reach the venue. Given the situation, now we are preparing at our respective bases. It may impact our show to some extent," added the wrestler.

Even the senior got a short camp ahead of the Worlds as the WFI had got the sanction a few days ahead of the event. While women wrestlers camped at IG Stadium, New Delhi, the men trained at SAI centre in Sonepat before leaving in batches for the Worlds held in Oslo, Norway from October 2 to 10.

Senior Nationals advanced

The WFI has advanced the dates of the 2021 Senior National Championships from November 19-21 to November 11-13. "...The championship will be held from November 11 to 13 at the same venue," read a letter issued by the WFI to its affiliated units and boards.

Oz teen's climate injury plea contested by govt

Allowing the Indian origin girl's petition, a court had placed the responsibility of climate change on the Australian govt

ENVIRONMENT

MELBOURNE: The Australian government on Monday began its legal challenge to a Federal Court's landmark decision that it has a duty of care to protect children from future personal injury caused by climate change, according to media reports.

In May, Anjali Sharma, a 17-year-old high-school student of Indian origin from Melbourne and seven other teenage environmentalists, led the legal battle against the Australian government. Sharma and the group had argued the continued emission of carbon dioxide into the atmosphere would drive intense bushfires, floods, storms and cyclones and leave them vulnerable to injury, sickness, economic loss and even death towards the end of this century, news.com.au reported. They urged the court to prevent Environment Minister Sussan Ley from approving a proposal to expand the Vickery coal mine in northern New South Wales. In his ruling, Justice M Bromberg approved the extension of the coal mine project.

However, he did find that the minister had 'a duty to take reasonable care to avoid causing personal injury' to children when she decided on the project extension under the Environment Protection and Biodiversity Conservation (EPBC Act), a report in news.com.au said.

The ruling was heralded as a significant win for the teenagers and the group of climate activists around the world.

Ley has since given the nod for the mine's expansion.

For Sharma, it was the concern for the environment, her family and future generations, which fuelled her legal charge against the Australian government, a Sydney Morning Herald report said. Born in India, Sharma and her family moved to Australia when she was barely 10-months-old. Her relatives are farmers, who hail from Lucknow.

Anjali Sharma

Growing up, she had heard about global warming and decided to seek more information by watching Youtube videos, the report said. 'Growing up in Australia I consider myself really fortunate,' she said. 'I got an education that helped me make sense of what was happening,' Sharma was quoted as saying in the report.

On Monday, Ley's lawyers told the Federal Court that the EPBC Act was not an appropriate vehicle for the 'novel duty of care' as identified by Justice Bromberg.

They argued that Justice Bromberg had committed a mistake when he expanded the object of the act to not just be about protecting parts of the environment, but about protecting the interests of human beings living in the environment. Her lawyers also contended that the duty of care is 'incoherent' with the EPBC Act and distorts her capacity as minister. They also claimed that there was no evidence that the additional coal from the expanded mine would increase the risk of the global temperature increasing beyond 2 degrees Celsius above pre-industrial temperatures, according to the Associated Press.

'We will proudly defend the historic ruling that all Australian children are owed a duty of care by our government, and fight to protect my generation from the increasing risks of climate change,' Sharma was quoted as saying in a statement by the Associated Press.

The eight young environmentalists were congratulated over the May ruling by Greta Thunberg, who rose to the forefront of the youth climate movement after she protested inaction by going on strike from school.

"This is a huge win for the whole climate movement. A big congratulations to the brave Australian teenagers who have achieved this," the 18-year-old Swedish environmentalist tweeted. "Of course the action needed is still nowhere in sight, but these court cases are symbolic breaking points that could have huge snowball effects," Thunberg had said then.

China denies doing a hypersonic missile test

ARMS

BEIJING: China on Monday denied a report it had recently launched a hypersonic missile, saying it tested a spacecraft to trial reusable technologies.

The Financial Times reported Saturday that Beijing had launched a nuclear-capable missile in August that circled the Earth at low orbit before narrowly missing its target.

FT sources said the hypersonic missile was carried by a Long March rocket and that the test had been kept under wraps. But China said Monday the report was inaccurate and the exercise was a test of reusable technology that could reduce the cost of launching spacecraft. "According to my understanding, this test is a routine spacecraft test, used to test a reusable spacecraft technology," foreign ministry spokesman Zhao Lijian told reporters.

"This could provide a convenient and cheap way for humans to use space for peaceful purposes."

When asked directly if the FT report was inaccurate about the missile, Zhao replied "yes". Along with China, the United States, Russia and at least five other countries are working on hypersonic technology.

What are hypersonic missiles?

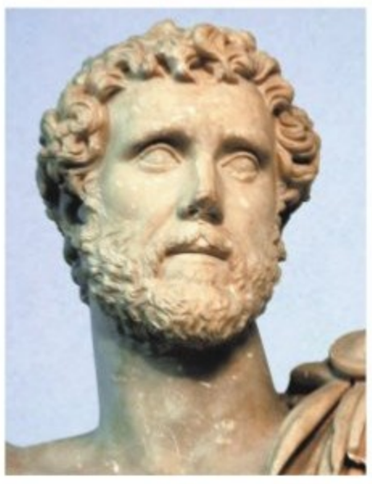
Hypersonic missiles can fly at more than five times the speed of sound and like ballistic missiles can deliver a nuclear warhead. But ballistic missiles fly high into space in an arc to reach their target while a hypersonic flies on a trajectory low in the atmosphere, potentially reaching a target more quickly.

Crucially, a hypersonic missile is maneuverable – making it harder to track and defend against. Countries have developed systems to defend against cruise and ballistic missiles, but their ability to track and take down a hypersonic missile is questionable.

Violent deaths norm for kings

HISTORY

More than 75% of the 69 men who ruled the Roman Empire from 63BC to 395AD died from violent deaths - either on the battlefield or they were murdered by conspirators looking to remove them from the throne, scientists have determined. The rest, which accounts to just one in four, died of natural causes like sickness or old age. Data scientists University of São Paulo's Institute of Mathematical and Computer Sciences in São Carlos determined the 80/20 rule is associated with the deaths of the Roman rulers, as they were more likely to die of unnatural causes. Researchers found an emperor was more likely to perish from unnatural causes shortly after taking the throne and the threat did not decline for 13 years after.



MIRACULOUS ESCAPE FOR 2 IN DESERT

NATURE

Two persons survived days without water in Australia's hot and dusty outback, police said Monday, ending a frenzied five-day air and land rescue effort. Twenty-one-year-old Shaun Emitja and 14-year-old Mahesh Patrick were reported missing on Tuesday in the Harts Range area of central Australia. After their blue Nissan Navara was found abandoned and bogged down in a dirt track, police scoured the countryside using a helicopter and expert trackers. The pair was feared to be in grave danger given a lack of water and the area's extreme temperatures of more than 40 degrees Celsius (104 Fahrenheit) in what is still the southern hemisphere's spring.

RAISING EYEBROWS

Top corporate honcho Indra Nooyi's remarks on pay hikes and promotions have sparked a debate with some pointing out that the statement comes from a place of privilege, while others believe it's a personal choice

ANILA KURIAN

INDRA Nooyi, the former CEO of PepsiCo, who has long been celebrated for breaking the glass ceiling for women of colour, seems to have drawn flak with her latest comment. In context of the launch of her memoir My Life in Full: Work, Family, and Our Future, published by Hachette India, Nooyi has been doing several interviews. During one such with an international publication, Nooyi said, "I cannot imagine working for somebody and saying my pay is not enough." She went on to add that she does not believe in asking for a raise and finds it "cringeworthy".

While some supported Nooyi's statement as being a personal choice, many have pointed out that this remark comes from a place of privilege. Jayalakshmi Manohar, co-founder and CPO at Streak AI Technologies, feels one should ask for a raise if they feel they deserve it. "There's nothing cringeworthy about asking for a raise. A business, essentially, would make decisions on hiring depending on what the priority is and urgency when it comes to disbursing cash. Therefore, the business might take a decision to not give you a raise even though they feel that you deserve it, simply because you haven't asked for it or it isn't urgent. Asking for a raise has nothing to do with your self-worth, it,in fact, shows confidence in yourself when you do so," she says.

However, former corporate head-turned-chef Saritha Hegde believes it's important to be true to your personality. "Probably Nooyi's personality is such that she didn't want to ask for a raise. We are no one to tell her otherwise. However, I think it was blown out of proportion because people assumed it was gender-based, whereas I think she meant it as a general thought," she opines. Hegde, too, never asked for a promotion but was happy with the recognition she got in her 22-year career. "I'm also like her, I never wanted to ask for a raise but I got it. There's no reason to add gender to it and say she's wrong to say what she said," she adds.

Agrees Harish Bijoor, business and brand strategy specialist. "Money demanded is always more disrespectful than money and promotions that are received gracefully. I'm with Nooyi when she said it's cringeworthy to ask for a raise because I know many in the corporate world who have never asked for a promotion or increment — it just happens," he says, adding that the organisation will reward an employee when they notice the hard work. "You'll get what you deserve. And if you don't, move on and find another company." According to Aprameya Radhakrishna, co-founder of Koo, a desi micro-blogging platform, Nooyi might have been one of those outperformers who didn't need to ask for promotions and raises. "Given that we live in a competitive market, there's no harm in asking for an increment. A company should ideally reward a good candidate. It's also a company's responsibility to look out for those who deserve the recognition," Radhakrishna says.

There is no reason to add gender to the statement and discredit Indra Nooyi. Maybe it is her trait to not ask for a raise
Saritha Hegde, entrepreneur

Surgeon's solution

After a hectic day, this plastic surgeon who plays the flute, creates oil paintings and is into bird photography, believes that it is in line with his specialisation which requires patience and technique

SANATH PRASAD

WHEN the clock strikes 9pm, Dr Bharath PS picks up his flute to learn new tunes under the guidance of his teacher, Vidhwan Rajkamal.It's this passion that helps the consultant- cosmetic, plastic and reconstructive surgery at Columbia Asia Hospital, Sarjapur, keep cool even under challenging circumstances.

Right from his younger days, Bharath was keen to learn music. However, with a tight schedule while pursuing his MBBS and higher studies, this interest stayed on the back-burner. Recently though, he managed to carve out time to pursue his long-cherished dream. "For the past five years I have been a student of classical music. I am learning the flute from Vidhwan Rajkamal through an online platform. Although there was inconsistency in practising the flute in the last few years, the lockdown due to the pandemic came as a boon. Currently, I attend classes twice a week at 9pm, after I finish with surgeries," says Bharath, who also believes that playing the flute and doing plastic surgeries are complementary in nature. "Plastic surgery is also an art form. It is all about bringing back the affected part of the skin to its original form. Practising the flute has helped me in finger texturity and breath control, that actually helps me while doing surgeries," adds Bharath.

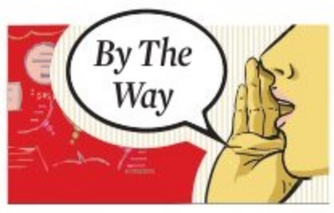
Bharath has multiple interests, including art, which he pursues when he's not performing a surgery. He recently realised his interest in oil-painting and is making time to do the same. "I am a self-taught artist. Interestingly, I was inspired by my professor Norman Guido, who taught plastic surgery at St John's Medical College. He has an interesting line-up of paintings and his versatility inspired me to pursue art. I usually work on oil paintings and paint pictures of flowers, landscape and nature," says the 46-year-old, who also helps his daughter with acrylic painting.

If he's not at work, playing the flute or painting a pretty picture, Bharath is photographing birds. Currently staying at the quarters in National Institute of Mental Health and Neurosciences (NIMHANS), he has found the opportunity to capture some of the flora and fauna around through his lens. "My place of stay has given a great scope to pursue photography," says Bharath, who has also captured the Asian Paradise Flycatcher, Shikra and has photographed rare species at the Thattekkad Bird Sanctuary in Kerala. "In fact, plastic surgery training involves a lot of documentation and photography of medical cases. That is how my interest in photography started," says Bharath.

AFTER HOURS

Dr Bharath PS

So how does he manage to pursue so many activities amid medical emergencies? "It is challenging with a high workload. In addition, I am also attending to trauma cases which have increased multi-fold after the lockdown. Sometimes hobbies have to take a backseat. But there's no better stress-buster to pursue when time permits," Bharath says.



Sneak-Peek

From starting his day at 4:30am to catching up with daily routines until noon, Sandalwood star Darshan Thoogudeepa, gave his fans a sneak-peek into his daily routine in a new video. The actor is also seen sharing some workout tips with his fans. He also chatted with actor Rachita Ram, as he gears up to kickstart the shooting of his new film Kranti.

Chat-time!

On Monday, actor Pooja Hegde took to Twitter to respond to some questions from her fans. When asked about the actor with whom she wants to share screen space, Hegde replied, "With the one and only Amitabh Bachchan sir." Answering a question on learnings from her dad, the actor replied, "there is no substitute for hardwork, never bring your problems, never let the child in you die..(sic)" Check out her timeline to read some of her interesting answers.

SINGING HER WAY TO SUCCESS

This 10-year-old singing sensation is releasing her new single for which she will collaborate with Grammy nominee, Shontelle Layne

DONNA EVA

MEGAN Rakesh, the little Bengaluru-based pop sensation has had a flurry of a month with the formation of her band, the release of her first single, and Grammy-nominated artiste Shontelle Layne, one of her role models and inspirations, announcing a remix of her single. All this just days before her 10th birthday.

The young star rose to fame with a cover of American singer-songwriter Alicia Keys' Fallin back in August, doubling her fanbase since then with over 50,000 followers on Instagram. Now, the singer has accomplished her goal of releasing her very own single before her 10th birthday with Find My Way, alongside her band, Meg and The Miracles. Produced by Jaicko Lawrence, a singer-songwriter, Aaron Sarkar, a rapper and songwriter, and Oluwayomi, a musician, the single was recorded and mixed in a month and released on the band's YouTube channel on October 13. The music video was produced by Josh Starks of Beardzly Productions.

The song is based on Megan's diary entries where she takes to voicing out her thoughts and writing the beginnings of ideas for songs. On the inspiration for the song, her father, Rakesh VG, founder of the band Out Of Office and guitarist for Meg and The Miracles, says, "She keeps writing these songs and this particular one I found in her diary about how to overcome your hurdles in life and keeping yourself motivated no matter what happens."

Shortly after, on a video call celebrating the young star's birthday, Layne announced that she would be remixing the song, going all out with production and release. "It's a dream come true, a pure blessing the way things are happening," says Rakesh.

Though Megan has a hectic schedule for a 10-year-old, sometimes even waking up at 1 am to showcase her talent on Instagram lives in the UK, the singer seems more passionate about singing than ever. "She loves to sing, while she does around ten Instagram lives where she sings songs, the other times she's having fun like a regular kid, watching cartoons, talking to her friends and chilling, even when she's not singing, I hear her humming around the house."

The youngster has plans to release another single and maybe even an album in the next year. She's currently lined up with interviews and will perform a concert on October 31, at the Sunday Soul Santhe at the Jayamahal Palace. Check out her latest single on YouTube at Meg and The Miracles.

I feel ecstatic and blessed about Layne remixing my new single. I still can't believe this is happening - Megan Rakesh, singer

- Inhale and on exhale, bend forward from the hips, reaching the hands down to the floor. Keep the arms straight and look forward to keeping the back neutral.
- Hold the pose for a few breaths and slowly come out of the pose by bending the front knee and pushing yourself up.

A (virtual) return to the hometown

I woke up after a good three hours of rest following a hectic home-cleaning marathon. Switched on my phone screen to check for updates. That was when I spotted this little message from a long-lost friend. He had sent me an invite to join a WhatsApp group of our childhood classmates. I stared at it for a considerably long time.

There was a strong reason behind my reluctance. A couple of years ago, I happily joined a group of my varsity batch. Well, let me put it like this — my enthusiasm died away within just a few days. Even before I could tell anyone about myself, many started asking uncomfortable, intimate questions, some even pressuring me to share my family pictures. No one seemed to bother that it might be a tad insensitive, given the fact that I had not spoken a single sentence with these people for about two decades. Many were making judgemental remarks about other members under the guise of humour and emojis. Then came a barrage of good morning — good night messages, followed by a train of forwarded, fake posts and horribly sexist memes. Took a while to recover from the experience. After a respectful period of muting all notifications, I exited the group one night, much to my relief.

After this experience, I started having serious doubts regarding such groups. I wondered what had gone wrong with all these people who held at least two degrees and responsible jobs. A few more similar experiences pushed me to stop being active on that platform.

All these flashbacks troubled me, as I stared at the invite. This was a group I had never thought I would come into contact ever again. I had vamoosed from my quaint Malnad village on a dull, rainy morning, knowing full well that it will be much difficult to return after showing the audacity to choose my partner. When I visited, a good 17 years later, I could not spot a familiar face from my generation. Finally, I decided to give it a go, expecting it to be a short ride, like my previous ones.

In this group were approximately 40 people I practically grew up with since I stepped into playschool. Most of us were neighbours. We had studied, played, fought, laughed, danced, celebrated, won and lost — with each other. We couldn't recall our childhoods without all these people — and suddenly, they were all around me.

To my surprise, they were all earnest and jovial. They were welcoming and very respectful. No awkward questions, no pressure. There was a lot of laughter associated with our memories together. Since we have seen each other at our best and worst as kids, there are no façades. These friends are scattered throughout the globe, are into myriad professions and have grown into compassionate individuals. We share voluntarily without any stress, because it feels like home. If anything, this is a learning experience on how to behave on social media.

Indian musical instruments you should know about

(The authors run SaPa - the Subramaniam Academy of Performing Arts)

WITH Deepavali coming up, and the Dasara season still in our rearview mirrors, festive music continues to be a major part of our day. Thanks to India's rich musical legacy, each region has its own folk instruments that are used to celebrate festivals, weddings, and other major occasions. Here are just a few wind and percussion instruments you should know about:

NADASWARAM: The nadaswaram is a South Indian wind instrument, and is said to be one of the loudest non-brass acoustic instruments in the world. In various cultures across South India, the nadaswaram is considered auspicious. It is a major part of weddings, festivals, and other temple ceremonies. Typically, the nadaswaram is played in pairs, accompanied by a percussion instrument called the thavil.

THAVIL: The thavil is a South Indian barrel-shaped percussion instrument from Thanjavur, in Tamil Nadu. You will typically find it played in accompaniment with the nadaswaram, and used in Carnatic and folk music. It is an essential part of traditional festivities and ceremonies across South India, and is especially popular in Tamil Nadu and Kerala.

SHEHNAI: The shehnai is a wind instrument popular in North India, and sometimes compared to the oboe. In India, it can be comparable to the nadaswaram, and is typically played to mark traditional celebrations like festivals and weddings. Today, the shehnai is also played as a part of live performances, thanks to Bismillah Khan, who brought it to the concert stage.

DHOLAK: The dholak is a double-sided percussion instrument, and widely used in many parts of Northern India. It can be played three ways: standing, slung from the player's shoulder, or held down on the player's lap. It is used to accompany weddings, festivals, and any other traditional celebration to add an element of energy and excitement.

It is well-documented that India is a country of music lovers. Each region has its own traditions and festivities, and music is an integral part of these celebrations.

Today, as we gear up for one of the country's most beloved times of year, it is a good time to learn more about the folk music and instruments that signal the celebrations. Our tip as music educators: Listen to some popular songs featuring each of these instruments, and see if you're able to spot the differences in sound and style.

PARITY AND PARTNERS

(The author is a counsellor with InnerSight)

Ever have feelings that you don't quite deserve the love you have in your life, that you are not quite in the same 'league' as your loved one?

It is, of course, questionable if feelings of love are best experienced within the same league, whether it is about social or economic conditions, beauty or fitness standards, caste or community, or any combination of the number of different aspects that could make one different from the other, and whether there are even any leagues as such. Somewhere between 'birds of a feather flock together' and 'opposites attract,' all relationships float around between and within such leagues.

What really happens when we think someone is out of our league, is that we might not even act on any attraction that might be there, thinking nothing will come of it and we might even self-sabotage any chance that might have been there of something special. We might turn a blind eye to flirtations, not even registering it or worse, we might think that it is just play or that we are being played and not take it up at all. On the other hand, if we are already in a relationship and then start having these thoughts when we meet their friends or family, or when we talk about books, movies, work or other things, the idea of whether or not we are in the same league can be very triggering. At the very least, it can make one feel insecure, and at its worst, it can be quite destructive. We might withdraw unilaterally from them thinking we should get away before we get too hurt. We might get needy and make our loved ones work extra hard at reassuring us that we are very much the object of their desire. We might pull them into what is our comfort zone, demanding changes to their lifestyle, get them to cut off their friends or other aspects of their lifestyle, getting them to curtail their career ambitions, intellectual growth, their expenses or whatever else triggers the feeling of being less than.

If we see ourselves in such a relationship where there is much disparity between the partners, to make it work, what we really need is to truly respect ourselves and all our identities, how we grew up to become who we are and be proud of ourselves, and similarly, to respect and honour the other persons' histories, capabilities and ambitions. Some of the most awesome love stories are ones that happen across these leagues, such as the story in the film Titanic, and like in that movie, our friends, family, work colleagues and others may judge us, and the pressures to conform can be enormous.

It takes a lot of self awareness to be in a place where leagues do not matter and we can really be open to loving people from all sorts of backgrounds. We may not be quite there, and that's ok as long as we don't let it drag us down the spiral of insecurity.

RATHNAN PRAPANCHA WILL RESTORE PEOPLE'S TRUST IN FAMILY DRAMAS

...says director Rohit Padaki about his upcoming family drama Rathnan Prapancha, which is set to release on Amazon Prime Video on October 22

CE FEATURES

DAYAVITTU Gamanisi director Rohit Padaki is awaiting the release of his second film Rathnan Prapancha, which is set to release on October 22 on Amazon Prime Video. In a chat with CE, the director says that he would like to tell stories that are close to people's hearts. "Having grown up watching family-oriented stories, I end up coming up with similar subjects subconsciously," says Rohit.

Rohit Padaki

Rohit admits Rathnan Prapancha will be a determining factor in his career. "Personally, the film is close to me because it is extremely rooted in Kannada culture. Secondly, I have written the story based on real incidents I witnessed in my neighborhood. I tell whatever I have for the society through such subjects like Rathnan Prapancha," says Rohit. The director also says that to date he is not able to differentiate between commercial and noncommercial flicks and that films like this can bridge both kinds of cinema. "However, I call Rathnan Prapancha a commercial entertainer because it depicts the life of a middle-class people, the largest section in our society."

According to Rohit, Rathnan Prapancha is the story of ordinary people in extraordinary situations. "I have explored this idea with the character Ratnakara, played by Dhananjay," says Rohit. Talking about his choice of actor for the film, Rohit says, "When I met Dhananjay, he came across as a very humble being. His real-life traits gave me the confidence that he will be apt to pull off the role. And, so was the case with the rest of the cast also," says Rohit.

Rathnan Prapancha is KRG Studios' first production venture, and Rohit is all praise for producers Karthik Gowda and Yogi G Raj. "The sister concern of Hombale Films, KRG Studios has a vision and a taste for good content. So, everything fell in place for Rathnan Prapancha."

Lastly, when asked why he is opting for OTT release while theatres are functioning with full capacity, he says, "There are people who are still hesitant to go to theatres and prefer to watch films on streaming channels and TV. This film will entertain them. Even my parents have stopped going to theatres as they feel they are not getting enough entertainment. I hear people saying that they last had a good theatre experience with films of Dr Rajkumar and Dr Vishnuvardhan. I am sure Rathnan Prapancha will restore their trust in family shows," he signs off.

'THE TROLLING WAS DISTURBING, DISHEARTENING'

... says Pratik Gandhi, as he talks about his upcoming film Bhavai, the controversy surrounding the film's previous title and more

SHILAJIT MITRA

PRATIK Gandhi sees the irony dogging his forthcoming release, Bhavai. Previously titled Raavan Leela, Hardik Gajjar's film follows two ramleela performers in love. Their onstage characters—they portray Ravana and Sita in folk Bhavai plays, an old theatre form in Gujarat—give cause for a local outrage driven by blind faith and communal politics. But the film didn't have to wait till release day to make its point. A satire on separating life from art, Bhavai fell prey to a loud trolling campaign when its trailer dropped on September 9. A defamation notice was sent to the makers for allegedly hurting religious sentiments and glorifying the figure of Ravana in a dialogue (it has since been removed). Pratik, making his Hindi feature debut after Scam 1992, took the most heat. Everything from his Gandhi surname to his artistic integrity was mocked online.

"Our film has a simple message," Pratik says, noting our difficulty to distinguish between fiction and life. "(The trolls) are already proving it." Here, the actor reflects on growing intolerance towards the arts and the pitfalls of success. Excerpts...

How did you feel when the film's trailer was attacked over a month before release?

It was quite disturbing, disheartening. Without watching a film, some people were misunderstanding it. The trolls are not in anybody's control. They write behind anonymous IDs. You can't have a discussion with them. Everything I say or tweet, it will be taken in a different light. The kind of filthy language they use... we don't have any laws for that. My own family has been suffering because of that. I don't even know if the trolls are real people or bots. It could be that the whole thing was taken as an opportunity for people with some other agenda.

Q&A

Were you consulted when the makers decided to change the title and delete a contentious dialogue?

It was not a consultation but yes, it was discussed. I was not in Mumbai when this happened. I was shooting and travelling. Furthermore, I'm the newcomer in this scenario. My director and producers are much more experienced people. I'm sure they know well what to do with the film.

We have had a tradition of satirical films like PK and OMG: Oh My God! becoming popular hits. Do you think something has changed in the last few years?

A still from Bhavai

Something has changed dramatically for sure. It is difficult to understand and digest beyond a point. I can't say what it is but I agree that something has.

Coming from Gujarati theatre, were you familiar with the world of Bhavai troupes?

I was quite familiar, yes. It is a popular theatre form in my state. It traditionally has two narrators, male and female, who take you through the story. It's a musical form and is close to ramleela. In theatre, I had been in lots of mythological and costume dramas. The film shows you the whole life of these actors, how they live, stay, what are their conflicts...

The film has been accused of misinterpreting the Ramayana.

There are some 30-odd interpretations of the Ramayana around the world. Ours is not a literal film about Ram or Ravana. It's about the actors who perform these characters. It's a simple musical love story with ramleela as the backdrop.

Also, as someone playing Ravana onstage, I will have to perform certain lines. Ravana has never said Jai Shree Ram. He was against Ram. How can people blame me for saying a dialogue when it is Ravana saying it? In Mahabharata, too, wherever there is Krishna someone will have to perform Kansa.

You went from playing the most loved anti-hero of last year (stockbroker Harshad Mehta) to the most hated anti-hero of Indian mythology. Has the experience taught you something about the nature of success?

For sure. Nothing is permanent in life is what I have learnt. Somebody who loves you for your work may not like your work someday, and that's fine. I have no issues with that. If you don't like a film or performance, and you communicate that honestly, it's only fair. But the personal judgment and use of dirty language are what worries me.

Tell us something about your upcoming web series Six Suspects.

It is based on the book by Vikas Swarup. It's a crime drama. I am playing a character I have never attempted—another flawed one perhaps. It is being directed by Tigmanshu Dhulia, someone I really wanted to work with. It also has Richa Chadha with me.

Has the experience of Bhavai scared you to not attempt such projects again?

I am still thinking about the answer to this question. My family keeps telling me, 'Be careful...' But I don't know what can offend whom. How will I ever be able to judge? Perhaps all scripts should first be censored by the audience before we shoot them. Our film received a 'U' certificate from the CBFC. We should at least trust that process. So I really don't know.
